Death of a Pioneer Settler - On Monday death claimed another oi Canterbury's early settlers in the person of Mr Charles Munn, who was generally known and respected by the residents of the Rangiora district, amongst whom he lived and worked from the time the place was a wilderness of bush and swamp until about a year ago, when paralysis laid him by. He arrived in Lyttelton by the ship Travencore in 1851, five months after the Pilgrims, and after five years spent in the Bays and at Papanui, settled at Southbrook with his family, where he found employment in the bush. His death occurred at the Christchurch Hospital where he had been taken for medical treatment.

- #Mr William Munn who died recently in his eightieth year was a pioneer of Oxford, having lived and done business there for more than 60 years. Born in Southbrook in 1856 he was the youngest son of Mr Charles John Munn, who arrived in New Zealand by the Travencore in 1851. He received his education at Mr Merton's school. He began business in Oxford as a shoemaker and importer more than 60 years ago, his place of business being on the terrace, but when the railway was put through he went to live at the terminus, where he remained till his death. In 1881 he married Miss Jane Inch, the second daughter of Mr H B Inch, of Harewood road, Oxford. In his younger days he was a well-known athlete. He was a member and chairman of the West Oxford School Committee, a member of the Oxford Racing Club, of the Oxford Sports Association, the Oxford Bowling Club, and of the Oxford Domain Board. He was an active member of the Oxford Lodge of Oddfellows, and was its treasurer for 34 years. His wife died five years ago. He leaves a family of five sons and two daughters, Messrs W G Munn (Oxford), H A Munn (Te Kuiti), S. D Munn (Auckland), E R Munn (Dargaville), and F Munn (Greymouth), and Mrs J H Youngman and Miss A R Munn (Oxford). #Munn's Wharf (later known as German Brown's) stood where the Government Printing Office is built, and boats were on hire there up to the end of the seventies. Thorndon sea-bathers frequented this wharf till the Thorndon Baths Company was formed. The furthest wharf to the north was built off Pipitea Point by the founder of Levin and Co. Deep-Water Wharf. In the year 1861 the Provincial Council, being then in its eighth session, passed an Act authorising the Superintendent of the Province to cause a wharf to be erected in the Harbour of Port Nicholson, and to mortgage a sufficient portion of the lands vested by the Governor in the Superintendent under the Public Reserves Act, 1854 reference Papers Past website Evening Post newspaper 08 February 1915
#Time did not permit of the mention of many of the older buildings in Willis street and Lambton quay waterfront, and only a brief reference was made by Mr Edwards to the Commercial Wharf (the fourth wharf opened in 1841) near to the foot of Mulgrave street. This was built by a small company, and known later as "Munn's Wharf." Captain Munn (late of the Jewess) opened a store on the corner of Mulgrave street and Lambton quay, and later opened the Royal Hotel, in the building known as the Medical Hall, and shown on the picture referred to reference Papers Past website Evening Post newspaper 05 August 1925
#The Thistle Inn was built on Town Acre 015 Mr William Couper (alternatively spelt Cooper) being the first licensee. The Inn was carried on by him or his family for over twenty five years. From 1869 to 1875 Charles Brown was licensee, although it is stated in one record that in 1873 Mr J B Brown was licensee, this gentleman being the son of the well-known "German" Brown of the early days, hotel owner and associated with "German Brown's" Wharf on Thorndon quay. This was formerly Munn's Wharf, and was opposite what is now the Cecil Hotel, and was used as a landing jetty by warships reference Papers past website Evening Post newspaper 22 June 1931

#Mr S D Munn - The death occurred suddenly on Friday morning of Mr Samuel David Munn, of Sutherland Crescent Melrose, at the age of 60. The late Mr, Munn belonged to a pioneer Wellington family, his grandfather, the late Mr Daniel Munn, arriving at Port Nicholson in 1840 to establish the old Royal Hotel at what was once known as Munn's Wharf. His father, the late Mr David Munn, was born at Wellington, but went to North Auckland as a young man, and it was there that Mr S D Munn was born. Later he lived for a time in Hawke's Bay, where his father had a training stable. He went to the South African War with the 7th Contingent, and when he returned he joined the Permanent Artillery, serving at Wellington until 1904, when he joined the Tramways Department. In 1925 he entered the Government service, and was at Parliament Buildings for some years as personal messenger to the then Speaker Sir Charles Statham. Later he was stationed at Government Buildings, and since the outbreak of war in September had been at Military Headquarters, Buckle Street. In his young days Mr Munn was a keen footballer and played for the Oriental Club's Wednesday team. He was one of the first residents of Melrose and was instrumental in reforming the Melrose Football Club. He always took a keen interest in his comrades of the South African War, and was a prominent member of the executive committee of the Wellington South African War Veterans' Association. He was a member of the Druids Lodge for many years and was a Past Arch Druid. Mr Munn married Miss Agnes Euphemia Flint, who is also a descendant of a pioneer Wellington family, and there are five children. Mr R J Munn of the Tramways Department Wellington, Mr D D Munn who is serving in the Air Force, Mr A J Munn of Wellington, Mrs S Ross Khandallah and Mrs V B Armstrong Newtown. The funeral took place at the South African plot In the Soldiers Cemetery at Karori on Saturday, when South African veterans and representatives of the Internal Affairs Department acted as pall-bearers. The service was conducted by the Rev A G Gardiner, and Piper Angus Graham played the cortege to the grave, and a lament reference Papers past website Evening Post newspaper 12 February 1940

#Sad Fatality at Helensville - An Auckland Boy Killed – Auckland 14 April - A most distressing fatal accident occurred on board the barque Cabarfeidh, at Helensville, yesterday, resulting in the death of a promising young apprentice named Munn, about 10 years of age. Captain P Hughes, master of the Cabarfeidh, furnished the following particulars to his Auckland agents, Messrs Stone Brothers "This morning Mrs Munn's son and one of the ordinary seamen were putting empty water casks on shore to get water, Munn lost his hold and fell between the ship and the wharf, and a water cask fell on top of him. I had him carried into the cabin and sent for a doctor. The doctor did not think there was anything serious the matter with him he left, and came to see Munn again at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and then said that Munn was much better. The poor boy himself said he felt better. Towards 9 o'clock he commenced to get worse, the doctor came and prescribed for him again, and at 10 o'clock the boy died. "Captain Hughes concluded by expressing deep regret at the sad occurrence, and stated that he would telegraph to Mrs Munn to-day. Immediately upon receipt of the sad news at Messrs Stone Bros., Captain Norris proceeded to North Shore to break the news to Mrs Munn. This is the second bereavement that she has sustained, her husband, Captain Munn, having been drowned at Rarotonga about two years ago, whilst master of the schooner Agnes Bell.
