Unable to locate and confirm the LECKIE family in any 1861 Scottish census

John LECKIE and Agnes formerly MUIRHEAD left (perhaps Coatbridge) Scotland and arrived in Auckland New Zealand around 1860. The family may have travelled to New Zealand via Australia.

John LECKIE was assaulted by James INGLIS in Auckland around 1861 but I am unable to state that John belongs to this family.

Messrs' A Beetham and T Macfarland were presiding magistrates at the Police Court yesterday morning. The chief case was a family squabble between William Slater and John Leckie, the former of whom was the son of Leckie's wife. Painful disclosures were made as to the relationship subsisting in the family, which both parties must be sorry for when their passions cool down. The case in which the old man Leckie was prosecutor was found proven and Slater fined £2 and full costs or two months imprisonment, and thereafter to find two sureties in £25 each to keep the peace for six months. The case in which Slater was prosecutor was dismissed.

Daily Southern Cross Wednesday 01 February 1871

Police Court – Friendly Relatives – William Slater was charged on warrant by John Leckie with having violently assaulted him on the 17th January by striking him and otherwise abusing him – Prisoner pleaded not guilty – Mr Keetley appeared for the prisoner and Mr Beveridge for the complainant – John Leckie related to the circumstances of the quarrel. From his evidence it appeared that the prisoner was a son of complainant's wife that some two years ago plaintiff had gone to Sydney and from certain circumstances, which there came to his knowledge he decided to return to Auckland. Prisoner and complainant's wife "wished to get him out of the road" as he had letters in his "pocket to show". On the evening in question as he was retiring to bed his bedroom was rushed by the prisoner. He was seized by the shirt by the prisoner who shouted "You – wretch I'll kill you." His shirt was all torn and was produced - a rather ragged and bloody garment. He was violently assaulted and from prisoner's threats, he was afraid that he would do him some grievous bodily harm. Frances Jones residing at Richmond, gave corroborative evidence. Plaintiff came to his house on the night in question with his shirt all torn; he was bleeding and bore many marks of having rough treatment. Dr Goldsbro gave evidence upon the nature of the wounds plaintiff had sustained. He had no appearance of having been drinking; other wounds had been lately inflicted. This was plaintiff's case. Mary Leckie wife of plaintiff gave her version of the affair and said that "one was as bad as the other". She dragged the sleeve out of the plaintiff's shirt, dragged him into the bedroom and locked him in, but he afterwards went out by the window. Had she known that he was going into town he would never have got out of the house. Cross-examined by Mr Beveridge, She did not like her son better than her husband. She was disappointed when he came back from Australia. She wished to get away from her husband, and to live with her son. She was outside the house when the squabble between her son and husband began. The two were scuffling when she went into the bedroom, the noise attracted her then. She could not say whether her son was drunk, he might have had a glass. Her son was very excited. She could not say that he son was ever in her husband's bedroom since his return from Australia. Mr Keetly re-examined after which the Court examined at some length. A cross action – John Leckie was then charged by William Slater with having on the 17th January violently assaulted him by striking him on the face &c –Mr Keetley for the complainant and Mr Beveridge for the defendant. William engineer gave the particulars of the origin of the quarrel – something about a "block" said to have been got from Thornton, Smith and Firth's mill. The evidence given was similar to that in the above case.- In cross examination it appeared that the ownership of the house in which the parties reside in Richmond was at the bottom of the dispute – Counsel having address the Court the Magistrate retired to consider their decision. On their return the Chairman said In the case of Leckie against Slater the defendant is fined £2 and full costs and in default two months imprisonment and thereafter to find two sureties in £25 each to keep the peace for a period of six months. The case of Slater against Leckie is dismissed.

John LECKIE returned to Scotland and died 1872 in Glasgow Scotland not far from his former residence Coatbridge Lanarkshire Scotland.

(Reference information sent by a descendant but the death registration images was very blurry and hard to read)

A researcher believed that John LECKIE may have gone to the California Goldfields after his unsuccessful time at the Thames goldfields before returning to Scotland. This requires further research.

Mary LECKIE aged 60 years died on 30 December 1878 Cook Street Auckland. Cause of death was enlargement and disease of liver 4 months as certified by Dr BAYNTUM. She was born Mary BROWN about 1818 in Dumfries Scotland. She was the daughter of a draper and parents recorded as John & Mary LECKIE which should have read BROWN. She married John LECKIE in Auckland at age of 46 years. She had resided in New Zealand for 17 years. The undertaker from Auckland Geo. DICKINSONS registered the death on 30 December 1878.
