#Obituary - Mr William Seagar of the well-known iron founding firm of Seagar Bros., died at his residence Upper Queen Street yesterday afternoon at the age of 50 years. It will be remembered that it is only about a month since his brother Mr Henry Seagar died. About that time Mr William Seagar was taken ill and it was found that the trouble was an internal complaint. Deceased was the eldest son of the late Mr William Seagar who was well known as an engineer and boilermaker at Thames in the early days of the goldfields. When the father died the four sons came to Auckland and started the present business. Mr William Seagar had many friends who will deeply regret the death at what should be the prime of life of one who was highly esteemed as a man of sterling worth and character. The interment takes place to-morrow at Purewa Cemetery reference National Library of NZ Papers past website Auckland Star newspaper 04 February 1907 page 3
