Mr Brown's Dray - Pioneering Story - Founder Of Upper Hutt - Last Child Dead at 91 -
By the death of Mrs Elizabeth Martin on Friday 6th December 1929 Upper Hutt lost the last original settler of a hardy pioneering Scots family. Born at Paisley Scotland 91 years ago she left the Clyde in September 1840 with her parents Mr and Mrs James Brown and other members of the family arriving in Port Nicholson on 27th December 1840. The voyage in the Blenheim terminated when that vessel anchored off Kaiwharawhara and on landing there the Brown family were accommodated in a raupo whare provided for their use by the agent of the New Zealand Company. Shortly afterwards a removal was made to what is known as Alicetown Lower Hutt and at a later date to Belmont. The Brown family were the first settlers beyond the Silverstream Taita Gorge communication between these points being by means of a native track over the hills from Taita across the stream in Stokes Valley and again across the hills to where the Silverstream brickyards are now located. There was no way alongside the river on the eastern side as the river ran close to the hillsides there.

Detour at Taita - Having acquired possession of a piece of land extending from the neighbourhood of the Upper Hutt Post Office eastward beyond the Borough Council offices Mr Brown proceeded to settle upon his holding and, placing his worldly goods upon a light dray trekked eastward towards Upper Hutt. The hills of Taita and Silverstream were impassable for wheeled traffic and the vehicle was taken apart the wheels taken across separately and the body slung on poles carried by the pioneer assisted by a couple of stalwart settlers (Messrs Galloway of Pahautanui and McEwan of Rangitikei). On arrival at the eastern side of the gorge the vehicle was reassembled and the kindly neighbours returned to their homes then at Lower Hutt. On arrival at Upper Hutt Mr Brown erected a slab whare for his family, and covered it with a sail cloth for a roof. He conducted the first tavern in the district which was designated "The Shepherd" and later on reconstructed and improved it when it acquired the name of the "Criterion Hotel" in which the Duke of Edinburgh stayed the night on the occasion of his visit to see the beauties of the Hutt River and native bush at the "Maori Bank." A photograph of the hotel can be seen now in the Borough Council Chamber at Upper Hutt. The building until recently temporarily occupied by the local Bank of Australasia was the stables of the Criterion Hotel and replaced the original stables which had been destroyed by fire on the night of the Duke's visit. It has the honour of being the first store in Upper Hutt. The original business settlement having been established in the neighbourhood of the Oddfellows Hall Trentham.

Maori Troubles - The Stockade - Mrs Martin had two brothers (James and George) and one sister Sarah (Mrs Wilson) older than herself and two brothers David and Andrew born in New Zealand all of whom predeceased her. The deceased lady though sorely troubled with rheumatism in later life retained all her faculties until a few hours before her death and could speak clearly and with wonderful detail upon historical and domestic matters of the Hutt Valley from the sea eastward. She gave vivid pictures of the many hardships and anxieties of the pioneers of the floods of the Hutt River - half a dozen a year - when the water ran through their house in the Lower Valley of the first bridge over the Hutt River of the Maori troubles and the early morning attack on Boulcott's Farm outpost when Bugler Allen was killed while sounding the alarm of the building of the stockade at Trentham near what is now known as "Quinn's Post" Hotel the local bushfire fights and the several sawmilling industries of the district - three mills operating at the same time between Whiteman's Valley road and the Upper Hutt Catholic Church on the main road frontage.

Mrs Martin was of a kindly nature and ever willing to help anyone in need. She was a keen gardener and her residence was surrounded with choice plants and flowers and was one of the beauty spots of the Upper Hutt. She was the first lady elector to record a vote at a Parliamentary election in the upper end of the Hutt Valley. Her husband Mr Alexander Martin a native of Kirkcudbright Scotland died 27 years ago. Of her family of twelve there are nine still living. The sons are James of Upper Hutt for many years connected with the New Zealand Railways William of New Plymouth farmer David of Wanganui of the White Star Motor Service and John of Hastings fruit expert and the daughters are Jane (Mrs Golder) of Upper Hutt Isabel (Mrs McGrath) Elizabeth (Mrs Monihan) of Wellington Emma (Mrs Larmer) and Helen of Upper Hutt. There are 42 grandchildren and 53 great-grandchildren.
