They were some distance from me at the time probable over a hundred yards I at once went to the child and took off its clothes as quick as possible the outer cloths were destroyed by the fire before I reached her and the rest I took off. The child was then carried into the house deceased severely burnt very much in every part of the body except her feet. The child died about four o'clock in the afternoon. Signed A Faulkner.

I then started off for the doctor. The fires had been alight the day before I saw one of them children put more wood one the fires the night previous signed David Brown

Evening Post newspaper 19 May 1884

Suicide at the Upper Hutt - Information reached town yesterday regarding the suicide at the Upper Hutt of a married woman, named Jane Pike. It appears that deceased, who was the wife of Mr Edward Pike, settler, Upper Hutt, had for some days been complaining of a pain in the head. On Saturday last she left her home and proceeded in the direction of the river. Her husband, fearing she intended to destroy herself, as she had developed slight symptoms of insanity a day or two previously, followed her, and arrived at the river side just in time to see her floating away into deep water. She sank almost immediately. By this time five other men had put in an appearance, and one of them, named Charles Chard, jumped into the water and brought the body up from the bottom, when life was found to be extinct. The occurrence was reported to the Coroner, who appointed an inquest to take place at the Provincial Hotel, Upper Hutt, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Deceased, who was 46 years of age, leaves a large family.

- #The inquest concerning the death of an infant which was born in an outhouse at the Upper Hutt on Saturday afternoon was commenced before Mr Robinson RM Coroner at the Provincial Hotel Upper Hutt yesterday. Mrs Emma Leddy sister of Agnes Pyke 18 years of age the mother of the child described the circumstances under which she found the child which was then alive and stated that she sent immediately for a nurse and a doctor as the infant appeared to be suffering from an injury to its mouth. She was unaware that her sister was enceinte. James Leddy husband of the first witness, Sarah Johnson a nurse and Dr Baker gave testimony the latter stating that it was quite possible the wounds on the month were accidentally received at the time of birth. The cause of death was hemorrhage and the consequences of exposure. Constable McKinnon of the Upper Hutt said that he had examined the place in which the child was born and in his opinion it was impossible for the child to have got where Mrs Leddy said she found it without being actually placed there. As the mother was too unwell to appear and give evidence the Coroner decided to adjourn the enquiry until 11.15 am on 3rd November reference Papers past website Evening Post newspaper 20 October 1891
