Coroners Inquests & Reports - Upper Hutt & Hutt Valley 1858 - Onwards

Coroner's inquests provide valuable information about the deceased person, the witnesses and the jurors who resided in the neighbouring district. The reports also give the place where the inquest was held which is often a local hotel. The full name of the licensee of the hotel is also recorded. The licensees often change and Coroner's inquest helps to identify who holds the license during the different time periods.

1853 – Te Mahana

Fatal Accident – A fatal accident occurred on the new road at Mungaroa occasioned by the slipping of a large mass of earth and stones by which one of the natives belonging to Mr W Swainson's road party named Te Mahana was killed on the spot, a large stone having struck him on the back of the neck. The body was brought down to Petoni yesterday for the purpose of holding a Coroners' inquest. This we believe the first accident attended with loss of life which has occurred on the public roads since their commencement.

Information of Witnesses taken touching on the death of Ellen Mudgeway

To wit information of witnesses taken this the 30th day of April, in the district of the Hutt, at the dwelling house of Charles Mudgeway known by the sign of the Barley Mow in the said district before Mark Kebbell coroner for the district of Wellington touching the death of Ellen Mudgeway.

Richard Mudgeway being sworn states that he is the brother to the deceased Ellen Mudgeway states he was in the Bush and his sister the deceased bought him his dinner and she and he and another sister commenced cross cutting a log together when the tree fell on my sister Ellen and crushed her and I ran for my father I called to my sister Ellen to come towards me as she was running towards me the tree fell upon her - his X mark (witness Mark Hebbel)

Charles Mudgeway being duly sworn father of the deceased Ellen Mudgeway I was in the bush splitting rails on Saturday with my son Richard. I came out to my dinner when my son and daughter told me that the tree had fell on the deceased I ran directly to the spot I found her between two trees I took and lifted one tree off and released her I took her up and was carrying her home to my house which was a distance of about one mile and half when we was met by Mr Wyeth and my son I was so much overcome I could not get on any further I sent Mr Wyeth into the road to get assistance I sat a long time with the child in my lap until some roadmen came and carried the child home before the deceased reached home the Doctor was waiting at my house I am sure the deceased was dead when I first discovered her and the Doctor states the Childs neck was dislocated - C Mudgway

-All the above information were severally taken and acknowledged this day year and place reported above mentioned before Mark Kebbell Coroner

Coroners Inquest – Last Friday at the house of Mr John McHardie The Highland Home Upper Hutt an inquest was held before Mark Kebbell Esquire the Coroner for the District on view of the body of a female child in infant of Edward and Jane Henn who was found dead in bed on the previous morning (Thursday) From the medical and other evidence adduced it seemed that the child died from suffocation in all probability from the female parents having overlaid it during the night and the Jury returned a verdict accordingly. The Mother's evidence could not be received the jury considering that she suffered to much from mental derangement (and has been in the same state we regret to say for some time past) so that her testimony would have been of no value

It appears that Mr Hill and the boy Butler were returning home with a load of shells from the Petoni Beach when the horse was frightened by a bullock running through the flax the animal became restive and the man and boy were thrown from the cart – one wheel going over the lad's body, and the other over Mr Hill's leg. The boy died on Thursday from the effects of the injuries received. Considerable sympathy is felt by the settlers of the district for the bereaved parents of the unfortunate youth who was we understand have been heavy sufferers from the floods especially the great flood which occurred some years ago. An inquest was held next evening and a verdict of "accidental death" returned reference Papers past website Colonist newspaper 16 May 1862

Fatal Accident – We are sorry to have to record the death of Mr Wm Dew senior of Valley End Farm, Hutt under the following painful circumstances. It appears that deceased was riding home from the Upper Hutt lately on Mr Giles timber dray when about half way between Mr Barton's and the Silver Stream he fell off between the fore and hind wheels the latter passing over his body in such a manner as to cause instant death. The deceased (who was one of the earliest settlers) served in the Guards at the battle of Waterloo. He has left a wife and numerous family to deplore his untimely end reference Papers past website Colonist newspaper 16 May 1862

1863 - Edward HANLEY

26 August 1863 (Upper Hutt)

Inquest held at The Criterion Hotel (James Brown) date 26 August 1864 for Edward Hanley Upon oath of Edward Player, James Cruickshank, Francis Whiteman, Isaac Quinning, William Robinson, Henry Hodgson, James Baylis, Henry Ashton, William Harwood, William Gardner, George Copland. Charles Clarke & Robert Clemant

Edward Hanley = That the said Edward Hanley on the 23 day of March in the year aforesaid at the Hutt aforesaid while crossing the river Hutt was accidently drowned in the river aforesaid of which drowning the said Edward Hanley then and there died and the jurors aforesaid do say that the said Edward Hanley by the means aforesaid accidently causally and misfortune came to his death and not otherwise.

Evidence = Frederic Williscroft labourer employed by Mr Cruickshank living Upper Hutt saw the deceased cross the river while looking for a cow he was washed away and he looked for him then sent word to Mr Cruickshank that deceased was lost joined by Charles Blake. Next morning went by canoe with natives but did not locate body. The deceased was a stranger to him and worked with him 21 & 22, deceased said his name was Tim born Dublin been a seaman and came from Port Cooper.

William John Spackman = Farmer living Fern Ground Upper Hutt heard the Maoris shouting they had found a pakeha so went in the canoe with Charles Butler and the native and saw a native holding the body of a man (deceased) placed the body in the canoe.

James Cruickshank = lived at the Fern Ground Saw Mills Upper Hutt he recognised the body of the deceased who was employed by him on 20th but did not know his name only that he came from the West Coast. Saw him last on the 22nd. Sunday after Williscroft sent word via my son that the man was lost in the river. I went with Henry Ashton & Isaac Allen to the river to search.

Enoch Palling = A road contractor living Lower Hutt and believe that the deceased was the man who worked for him for 3 weeks and left on the 11th. I recognise the boots as I helped to make them and he gave his name as Edward Hanley who came from Canterbury and had formed a prospecting company on the West coast and had friends in Canterbury and a brother in Liverpool and his parents belonged in Dublin

David Lyster = Constable of Upper Hutt district remarked that Mr Cruickshank informed him of the man lost in the river met up with Charles Bushby & William Spackman and told the natives had two canoes but were waiting for the river to go down before looking for the man on the river and would inform the Constable if they found a body. Mr Cruickshank son came to me in the afternoon and said they had found the body of the deceased and conveyed the body to Mr

Brown's Inn. The deceased was living with Williscroft and his property were given to the me. #Fatal Accident A sad accident occurred at the Hutt about eight o'clock on Saturday evening by which two persons lost their lives. A young women name Mudgway was looking at the merry-go-round now performing there when her nose suddenly began to bleed and she was led away by her father towards the river in the vicinity of the Stockade. By some accident she fell into the river which is very deep at the spot. The accident was witnesses by a young man named Gustavus Johnson who immediately stripped and plunged in. He was seen to gasp the drowning girl but directly afterward both disappeared. As Johnson was an excellent swimmer it is supposed that the girl must have caught hold of him in such a way as to prevent him striking out. The body of the girl was found the next morning but although a very strict search has been made Johnson's body was not recovered till yesterday afternoon when an inquest was held the particulars of which have not yet reached us. Both parties were well known at the Hutt where much sorrow is felt at their untimely end reference Paper past website Wellington Independent newspaper 30 July 1867

0- Charles CROFT born died 1864 or 1868 New Zealand

#The following particulars relative to the unfortunate loss of the above named ship, appeared in the Maryborough Chronicle, of February 15th. Mr Chadwick stated on oath I was chief officer of the brig Fayway, of which vessel Charles Croft was master, on the 1st February, 1864, we left Mayborough with a cargo of timber, bound for Sydney, on the 8th we proceeded to sea, steering a course from the Fairway Buoy to Breaksea Spit, which course we continued until the morning of the 9th, when we sighted Lady Elliott's Island, bearing SSW, distant about eight miles the land was then north-east, and the vessel under single reef topsail and courses, at noon of the same day tacked on an ESE course until ten o'clock at night, when there was a cry of "Breakers ahead," and all hands were called to took. I was then below, it being the captain's watch on deck; all hands rushed on deck, the captain was at the lead, and said four fathoms, the vessel was then put about, and in about five minutes after finding the water shoaling rapidly again tacked; there were then breakers all-round the vessel, in a few minutes she struck heavily, and the sea broke over the deck. At 8 o'clock on the morning of the 10th, finding four feet water in the hold, and no chance of getting the vessel off, prepared to leave in the boats, we were then about three miles north of Sandy Cape, and right in the middle, of the spit, the captain (Charles Croft), the steward (John Green), and two seamen named Daniel Powers and William Croker went into the jolly boat, and myself, William Ryland, George Francis, John White, and Andrew Young got into the long boat, taking with us a few clothes and some provisions, and started with the intention of reaching Maryborough, the wind was then from the northeast, and very squally, about two o'clock in the afternoon, made the outer banks in Hervey's Bay, the captain's boat being in advance, and some of us fifty or sixty yards behind. I saw the leading boat enter some breakers on the banks ahead, and immediately upset and turn bottom upwards. I immediately put my boat about, lowered the sail, and with difficulty succeeded in pulling clear of the breakers, the last time I saw the captain and the, men who were with him alive was when his boat upset. A letter has been handed to us, received from Mr J L Walker, by B Tarvis Esq, informing us of the merciful preservation of Wm Croker, one of the three men in the captain's boat when it upset. Croker says the boat, in going through the breakers, turned over and over several times, but he managed to hold on to it, and stuck to it that night, next day, and the night after, when he was drifted ashore at Damon's Point at daylight. He wandered about the beach on Friday and Saturday, until he fell in with a black-fellow, who conducted him to Miama. Croker saw nothing of the Captain and the two other men after the boat was upset. The brig is fully insured in Mr Metcalfe's office. Captain Croft was well known in the colony, and much respected. He leaves a widow and four children reference Wellington Independent newspaper 31 March 1864 #Rule of Court In the Supreme Court of New Zealand Wellington District The Seventh day of August AD 1868 – Upon reading the affidavits of David LYSTER of the Hutt and of William Robert Edward BROWN a curator of the estate of deceased persons it is ordered that the said

Evening Post newspaper 05 March 1869

Mr David Hughey's shop, store and dwelling place, Taita Hutt were totally destroyed by fire between two and three o'clock this morning. The fire originated in the stables of the Albion Hotel owned by Mr Samuel Death a little before nine o'clock last night and the supposition is that sparks from thence mush have been carried by the wind underneath Mr Hughey's premises in near proximity as it was not till after the fire had been extinguished at the stables and everything quiet that Mr Hughley's store was discovered to be on fire which was speedily and totally destroyed. Estimated loss to Mr Hughey £1000 in the New Zealand Insurance Company. How the fire originated in Deaths has not yet been ascertained, but it is to be regretted that this is the second time a similar calamity has befallen Mr Death.

Evening Post newspaper 17 February 1869

Loss of the ship St Vincent - Fortunately it seldom falls to our lot to chronicle so sad a catastrophe as that of which intelligence reached us vesterday evening, the total loss of the ship St Vincent and her crew with the sole exception of two, on the Mokomoko rocks, on Sunday night. On the morning of Saturday last she lay in our harbour a new, strong and noble vessel, well manned, and ably commanded, and destined apparently to battle successfully with the elements for many a year to come and yet in a few short hours her scattered timbers were strewing the storm beaten beach of Palliser Bay. From Mr Stringer, chief officer of the ill-fated ship and one of the two survivors whose lives were saved almost by a miracle, we have learned the following particulars - The ship St Vincent, Captain James Barron, bound for Lyttelton, passed the lighthouse at Wellington Heads on Saturday, the 13th instant, at 4.30 pm, having on board, including the captain and one passenger, twenty-two souls, the wind was moderate from the NW the weather hazy and threatening the breeze lasted till about 7.30 pm, at which time the ship was 17 miles from the lighthouse, when it fell calm with heavy rain at 8.30 the wind came up strong from the southward with increased rain the ship was then put on the starboard tack, standing to the eastward, and continued so till 4 am on Sunday the weather was thick and still raining, and the wind increased to a strong gale the ship was wore on the port tack, and stood to the westward until noon on Sunday, when Cape Campbell was seen distant 4 miles she then wore again to the eastward it was blowing terrifically, with a furious sea, the ship under two topsails the fore and main topmast staysails blew away, and the foresail split in reeling the weather was still thick, and no land was seen after losing sight of Cape Campbell till 4 pm, when land was sighted on the lee-bow uncertainty prevailed as to what land it was until 6 pm, when Cape Palliser Bay was made out, bearing SE, and Taourakira Head W, which placed the vessel in the middle of Palliser Bay she was immediately wore round, and stood to the westward in hopes of weathering the point and making Wellington reefed foresail and mainsail were set, also mizen topsail reefed upper topsails, jib and spanker, the ship making very bail weather, driving bows under, and drifting fast to leeward about 9 pm the wind suddenly dropped, but the furious sea rolling into the bay prevented the vessel being kept to the wind, and she still kept falling off to leeward at 10 pm breakers were discovered close under the lee bow the wind being light, and the ship refusing to steer, she was thrown all aback and both anchors let go, sixty fathoms of chain being run out shortly afterwards she struck heavily abaft all hands were employed at tempting to clear away the life boat, when a furious sea struck the ship, throwing her almost on her beam ends, smashing the life boat, and carrying away the boatswain, who was seen no more about this time the cables apparently parted, and she fell broadside on to the rocks the next sea threw her on her beam ends the next carried away masts, boats, and everything, completely gutting out, and leaving her a total wreck the crew hung on to the main and mizzen chain plates on the port side the night was awfully dark, but all continued to maintain their hold till about 3 am on Monday morning, when the chief officer and the sailmaker were swept away, Mr Stringer does not know how he reached the land he was washed on the beach insensible, and on recovering consciousness about six in the morning he imagined himself the sole survivor. On looking towards the vessel, he observed she was about half a mile from the land her after part was completely smashed, and no signs of any of his shipmates were to be seen. He then made the best of his way to McKenzie's, where he discovered the sailmaker. In the afternoon he rode back to the scene of the wreck, and discovered the bodies of Mr McKay (a passenger), and one of the sailors, washed ashore he carried them 100 yards above high water mark, and laid them on a rock, covering them up with canvass. The beach was covered with wreck for about two miles. Mr Stringer then started on horseback from McKenzie's, and rode to within five miles of the Lighthouse. He walked to Phillips's, where he procured another horse, which he rode to the Hutt, and arrived in town by the coach yesterday evening. Some money and papers found on Mr McKay's body were by him handed over to the police. He desires to express his gratitude to Mr McKenzie, Mr Phillips, and the Lighthouse keeper, for their kindness in attending to his wants. Such is the story of another struggle with the storm in which as usual the elements have proved triumphant, despite the skill and courage of the little band who have gone so suddenly to an untimely doom.

The following are all the names of the crew of the St Vincent which we have been able to collect. The vessel having cleared out coast ways, a correct list of them was not required at the Custom House, and as a good many of the original crew had left, and others shipped here, a list is difficult to obtain. It does not appear quite certain whether there were twenty or twenty-two, but those whose names we publish were certainly on board

Evening Post newspaper 30 July 1869

We learn from a report furnished to the Inspector of Police by Constable Lyster that a fatal accident resulting in the loss of two lives occurred at the Upper Hutt on Wednesday. A man named James Symonds (who resides there) was at work in the bush on the opposite side of the River to his own house. About 12 o'clock his wife accompanied by her son a boy about 10 years of age in attempting to cross over to where he was at work were swept away by the stream and drowned. The bodies were found yesterday and an inquest was to be held today. (Reference Papers past website Evening Post newspaper 30 July 1869)

Wellington Independent newspaper 05 August 18

On Friday last an inquest was held at the Upper BHutt by Dr Wilford the Corner of the District on the bodies of Mrs Symons and her little boy who were found drowned in the river the previous day. Several witnesses were examined and the matter having been fully investigated the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

1870 – Nathaniel TRENCH

Wairarapa Standard newspaper 15 January 1870

Fatal Accident – We regret to have to record an accident which occurred at the Pakuratahi on the 16th instant at six pm. It appears that a man of the name of Nathaniel Trench who used to work at the saw mills but who has latterly been employed on the roads fell under a loaded wagon belonging to Mr Haywood which passed over his body crushing him almost literally to death. He died from the internal injuries sustained to about eleven pm. An inquest will be held at Mr Mason's Pakuratahi Hotel on the 15th instant (this day) (Reference Paper past website Wairarapa Standard newspaper 15 January 1870)

15 January 1870

Information's of Witnesses severally taken and acknowledged on behalf of our Sovereign Lady the Queen touching the death of Nathaniel TRENCH at the dwelling house of John Burtley MASON known by the name of The Golden Fleece in the Province of Wellington in the Colony above mentioned on Saturday the fifteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and seventy before John George Frederick WILFORD one of the Coroners for the said Colony on a Inquisition then and there taken on view of the body of Nathaniel TRENCH then and there lying dead as follows to wit:-

William Nathaniel Edward MASON [known as Edward] being sworn saith that on Thursday 13th January 1870 the deceased came to our house at the Pakuratahi about half past four o' clock in the afternoon he was about half drunk he walked pretty steadily. I took him down to his whare which is I should think about a mile and a quarter from our house on his way he called at the Golden Fleece Hotel & had a glass of something I don't know what. I left him in his whare. Haywards waggon was passing at the time and I got upon it. When we got a little way from his home I saw him lying in the road, a few minutes afterwards as I was standing on the shafts I heard somebody by the side of the waggon I looked round & deceased was lying on the ground just in front of the hind wheel the wheel at once passed over him his head was under the waggon & his feet outside. The wheel seemed to pass over him just about his hips, he was on his side I shouted to Hayward to stop the waggon which he did as quick as possible deceased did not seem to us much hurt we picked him up and put him on the top of the waggon he soon spoke complained of being sore and of his arm being broken we carried him from the waggon into Mr Mason's house and laid him on a bed. This would be about six o' clock he would not let us touch him to take his clothes off but wanted us to get a trap and take him to the Hutt I could not get a trap until 4 o'clock the next morning he said he would go down then. I went to milk, when I came back deceased seemed worse in great pain so I got a horse & went as far as the Upper Hutt where I got a person to go for the doctor when I got back he was dead. (signed) W N E MASON Joseph HAYWARD being sworn saith that on Thursday afternoon I was coming along the road with my waggon which had about four & a half tons of goods in at the time as I passed the house occupied by deceased I saw him put out his head, I thought he seemed to be in liquor so I took no further notice of him. When I got a little way down the road narrow [sic] the last witness came up & got upon the shafts, he said the deceased was believed that he was in liguor soon I head Mason shout out I at once pulled up and on looking back I saw deceased lying across the wheel track. We put him on the waggon carried him to Mr Mason's house and put him on the bed. I then went to attend to the horses when I came back I wanted to undress him but he would not be undresses. I left him again and when retuned deceased was asleep. I saw him again about seven o'clock he did not complain much but went to sleep again. I saw him again about ten o'clock he was then on the floor, those who had been with him had found out he was hurt in the private so at their request I lent them a waggon horse to go for the doctor, about half an hour after that he died (signed) J HAYWARDS

George Phillips being sworn saith that about half past nine on Thursday night E Mason came to the Golden Fleece Hotel where I am groom and asked me to go and sit up with deceased, I went, deceased seemed to me to be dying so I sent E Mason for the doctor, shortly after Manson left he died. After deceased was dead we undresses him I left as soon as E Mason's father came. (signed) George PHILLIPS

John Bentley MASON being sworn saith that I am landlord of the Golden Fleece Hotel. I remember the deceased Nathaniel Trench calling at my house on Thursday afternoon he called for a small glass of brandy which my wife gave him. I could tell that deceased had had a glass but he was not drunk - (signed) J B MASON

ORDER (Reference Archives NZ Wellington R24287516 ACGS 16211 J1 112/aa 1871/1518 Coroner Hutt 13 June 1871 Inquest proceedings on fire at Stephen Fagan's year 1871)

#A fire occurred this morning at about two o'clock at Mr Fagan's new house at the Taita. When the alarm was given by Mr Fagan's son the fire had obtained such a hold upon the building that all hopes of extinguishing it were quickly dissipated. The house was totally destroyed and only two years old. The house was partly insured in the Liverpool London and Globe Office for £200a further insurance in another office having only run out a few days. The furniture was partly covered by a policy for £300. The loss is estimated by Mr Fagan at £1000. It is not known how the fire originated reference Evening Post newspaper 08 June 1871

1874 – Henrietta NEEDHAM

New Zealand Times newspaper 17 June 1874

A child named Ettie Needham, four years old, has been missing from its parents' residence at the Upper Hutt since Sunday afternoon about four o'clock, when she was seen playing in the paddock behind the house. Upon the matter being reported to Constable Lyster a diligent search, in which about twenty of the inhabitants took part, was made, but though they continued the hunt till twelve o'clock at night no tidings of the missing child were discovered. The search was resumed at daylight next morning, the bush being carefully examined, but the girl had not been discovered up to two o'clock yesterday, although a separate party had dragged the creeks in the neighbourhood. The child has very likely strayed into some portion of the bush which has escaped the vigilance of the search party, who will continue their exertions until her whereabouts is tracked out. The family had only been a short time in the district, having arrived in the Wellington.

Constable Lyster of the Upper Hutt reported late last evening that no traces had been discovered of the missing child Ettie Needham.

New Zealand Times newspaper 20 June 1874

The missing child, Ettie Needham, who has been missing from her parents' residence at the Upper Hutt since Sunday afternoon, was found between four and five o'clock on Thursday, about a mile from her home, by a girl named Hogan, who was out in search of cows in Hogan's Bush, near Barton. The poor child was alive when found, but was in a very exhausted condition, having been exposed for four days and nights to the bleak weather of the past week without sustenance of any kind, and without clothing such as would afford protection from the wintry blasts. She was promptly conveyed to Mrs Hogan's house, where restoratives were administered by Dr Wilford, but the trial upon the system had been too severe, and she expired between eight and nine o'clock yesterday morning. Dr Wilford's certificate, that the child died from exposure and exhaustion, will obviate the necessity for an inquest.

#Protection Order – Henrietta Needham of the Taita applied for a protection order against her husband Robert Needham who did not appear. On answer to questions put by the magistrate she stated she had been married seven year and had four children one of whom had died that he husband had been an habitual drunkard since before Christmas last that on 08th February he had beaten her and cut her face with a pint pot and for these reasons she had applied for a protection order. On Saturday last he husband took two of the children and vowed that the next she would hear from them and him would be their death. She would like to have all her children and it was not her intention to trouble her husband for any contribution towards their support. Applicant admitted that she had been and was then cohabiting with another man. The application was adjourned till Thursday when Constable Lyster of the Hutt will be

An inquest was held on Saturday at the Criterion Hotel Upper Hutt on the body of John Evanson who was killed on the previous day on the new line of road to Waikanae by the falling of a tree. The evidence of two witnesses went to show that while they were falling one tree the deceased was falling another twenty yards away. As the tree was about to come down the two men called out to deceased to get out of the way. He did get out if the way of the falling tree but the tree lodges in another one and snapped it off half-way down. This second tree hit the deceased and killed him instantly. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Thomas BARKER being sworn saith that On Thursday the 26th of May I with four others of whose deceased was one of us going home from the house of one of the men it was between eight & nine o'clock in the evening the night was dark & wet our road home was along the back of the Pakuratahi stream just before we reached home we had to cross a stream which goings into the Pakuratahi river. I crossed first the deceased following me when we were all across I called for deceased but could not see him & shortly after I heard the splash in the river, two of us went at once to the river bank, the other two went on to the hut which was only about fifty yards distant to see if he had gone that way we called out and searched the river for some distance down from then till twelve o'clock but without any results. When deceased fell in I was about thirty feet from him the others were further away deceased at the time was perfectly sober. The river was in high flood [by the juror] I don't know what deceased had had anything to drink that day [by a juror] The track was I consider a very dangerous place on a dark night since the occurrence we have fenced it (signed) Thomas BARKER

William CURRIE being sworn saith that that I was one of the party going home in the night of the 26th instant before we arrived house we missed the deceased it was just after crossing the creek which cross into the Pakuratahi I was the third crossing the stream we sought deceased for some time but without effect I fell in myself whilst seeking him but was rescued by my comrades [by a juror] We lost no time in looking for him I was in his company all the evening he had three or four glasses of brandy during the day and was quite sober at the time. There were five of us when we left the Sawyers whare we had two Countrymen with us I consider the place dangerous in the dark but not in daylight. (signed) William CURRIE

Stephen HARRIS being sworn saith that that I was one of the party going home on the night of the 26th I was the second to cross the creek which runs into the river deceased was ahead of me I carried a lantern after crossing the creek the river turned to the right, decease instead of turning to the right went straight forward and I saw steps over the bank into the river We all tried to find him in the river but without success deceased was about six feet from me when he stepped over the bank into the river we were all quite sober Mr Cooper advised us not to go home as it was so dark but deceased was anxious to get home (signed) S HARRIS

An inquest was held at the Golden Fleece Hotel, Pakuratahi, on Friday last, on the body of Robert Baldin, who was drowned a few days previously. Four witnesses were examined, the only evidence possessed of any interest being that of John Sunnex, who discovered the body whilst pigeon shooting in the neighbourhood of the river bank, his attention having been drawn to it by his dog. According to the evidence of Sunnex the dog made a sudden "stand," and upon his going to see what was the matter he found the body in about 5 feet of water, jammed under a tree. Assistance being speedily procured, the body was removed to the Golden Fleece Hotel, and information conveyed to the police. The men in the employ of Messrs Farrell, Barker, Cooper, and Whiteman immediately subscribed an amount sufficient to bury the body, and indeed these men throughout, together with their employers, have acted in a manner that reflects the highest credit upon them. At the inquest the jury returned a verdict of "Accidentally drowned."

The Late Coach Accident

An inquest was held on Monday at the Golden Fleece Hotel Pakuratahi, on the body of the child Louis Slade, who came by his death owing to the late coach accident. Dr Wilford (the coroner) explained the nature of the inquiry, and told the jury that if they found there had been any gross carelessness in the driving, or faultiness in the equipment of the coach, it would be their duty to return a verdict of manslaughter against the party whose negligence should be proved, supposing there had been negligence.

The jury having elected Mr Hockington foreman, proceeded to view the body. On their return. Alexander James was sworn and said - I was a passenger by the coach on Saturday night. All the way coming up we were rendered afraid of accident because the driver was driving very recklessly. He was driving very fast, and from one side of the road to the other. Coming up a rise, near the Kaitoki Hill, just beyond which the accident occurred, he was whipping the horses, and the coach was swerving. He stopped at the top of the hill, and I asked him whether he was going to drive on he then started away at such a pace that I and others were ready to jump out, being afraid the coach would run into the bank. After we had proceeded a short distance further, the wheels on the left side of the coach struck the bank, three men, the deceased and its mother, being thrown out. The driver was one of the three men thrown out. The horses went on for a distance further, and the body of the coach was thrown off the frame. The body of the coach was smashed, and the horses ran away with the pole. I picked the child up, and it died in a few minutes. Blood was running from its head. I helped to carry the mother of the child to Mr Dicken's house which was just by. She soon came to her senses. I got on the coach at Mr Harris's. When I got on the coach I gave the driver twelve shillings fare for myself and others. The driver took it, but seemed to have great difficulty in counting the money. It was my impression that he was either very stupid or very drunk. I have ridden a good deal in stage coaches, and, in my opinion, the driving was very dangerous. I cautioned the driver. After the accident the driver seemed to be drunk. In plain words, I say I considered him drank. As far as I know, the coach was well found and equipped. It is possible that the leading horse may have shied, but I did not see it. My impression is that the horse did not shy, though I was sitting at the back and could not see well. The wheels were in the water table for a distance of half a chain before the spot at which the accident occurred was reached. The people were thrown off owing to the sudden jolt caused by the coach-wheel coining from the water table on to the road. If the horse had merely shied there would have been time for a sober driver to get the horses on to the road before the accident had occurred.

To Jurymen - At the top of the hill he stopped, and wished a passenger to get inside, because there would be too much weight on the front of the coach. The passenger declined to go, but offered to put his luggage back to relieve the weight. The driver refused to go on until we asked him to say what he intended to do. We said if he would not take us we would get out and walk. He then started off at a furious rate. I don't think he had the break on, but he may have had. When I cautioned him he took no notice of me.

Louis Evans deposed - I was a passenger in the coach on Saturday night from the Upper Hutt, but got down before the accident occurred. I believe the coachman was the worse for drink, because he was driving at a great pace and all over the road. I spoke to him and told him he was going too quick, but he took no notice of me. I was sitting alongside of him part of the time.

To Jurymen - At Kaitoki I told last witness to look out going down the hill.

John Prentice deposed - I was a passenger on the coach on Saturday night. I rode from Cruickshank's to the Mungaroa on the outside, and I then got inside. At Mungaroa the coachman, who had been driving fast, told me to get inside, and I did so. At this time I heard a man say to the driver, "If you don't mind you'll have an upset." The driver replied "I don't care if I do." The driver was drunk. When we started from the Mungaroa there was a man and a woman inside who were talking, and the driver looked inside, and told the woman not to talk so loud. I thought from his manner he was drunk. At the Kaitoki the coach stopped, and some luggage was shifted back at the request of the driver. He would not then go on till some passengers said, "Are you going to take us on or not; if not we will walk." He then started off at a great pace hallooing and hooting. Directly afterwards I looked out of the coach and saw a man upon the ground. I sang out and said, "Stop the coach." It did not stop, and immediately afterwards I found the coach upset and myself under it, two children being under me. The night was bright moonlight. I am quite satisfied in my own mind that the man was drunk. In the afternoon I asked the driver to take me up in a coach he was driving. He said he could not because there was no room. There were no angry words between us.

To Jurymen - I did not see the driver get drink. The wheel was never in the ditch till the time of the accident. He drove steadily up to the Kaitoki, and then drove very fast. It was a passenger who cautioned the coach, man.

Charles Jeffrey, also a passenger, gave corroborative evidence. The coach was driven very carelessly all the way, but till the time of the accident the pace was not fast, and the coach did not go into the ditch. I was looking at the horses just before the coach turned over. I looked out because it struck the bank. I saw three persons on the road. Horses shying might have been the cause of the coach running into the bank. On the roof of the coach were two boxes, a bag, and other things. Believed the man was drunk. Had never seen, the man before. A passenger told the coachman he would have an upset owing to the weight on the top of the coach.

James McCarthy, a passenger, who had alighted before the accident, considered the driver had driven wildly, believed the man was drunk, and had thought there would be an accident. The man could walk and talk, but could not handle the reins properly. When a woman got on the box the driver used improper language to her.

William Blake, who was on the box at the time of the accident, deposed, Furious driving caused the coach to go into the bank. The horses did not take fright, but the driver whipped them severely, swearing at the same time. Up to the time of the accident the coach was driven steadily. The coachman was not drunk and not sober. On the road he had three drinks. I was a little fresh. I had had five drinks during the day. I was thrown off owing to the near side wheel suddenly going into the rut. A wheel passed over my foot. The coachman was quite capable of controlling the horses. I think the woman should give her evidence, because when I got upon the box the coachman ordered me down again as there were enough people on the outside and there would be too much weight on. The woman who sat on the box pulled me by the coat, giving me the notion that she wished me to stop, and I would not get down. I pushed some boxes back and told him to drive on, and he then commenced driving furiously. It having been explained that the woman was too ill to leave her room, and there was not accommodation for the jury in her bedroom, the coroner was requested to visit her, and ascertain whether her evidence was sufficiently important to necessitate an adjournment of the inquest. On his return, the coroner read notes of what the woman said, showing that her evidence was confirmatory of what had been given before, excepting that she stated the horses had shied across the road into the ditch. The man was not drunk. When he asked her for the fare he used indecent language to her.

Charles Nelson the coachman deposed On the night of the accident I had an unusually heavy load. I was coming along steadily, but the leader slipped and put us in a rut. The sudden jerk carried the footboard away, and brought us down. I was driving slowly. I never go fast down hill. The wheel was in the gutter for about five yards, and then caught a piece of timber. I was stunned by the fall, and know nothing more about the matter. There were three horses in the coach. I was not drunk. I had had two or three drinks during the day. No one cautioned me as to the way in which I was driving, and no passenger expressed any fear of danger. I have had fifteen or sixteen years experience of coaching in Sydney, Melbourne, and Christchurch.

To Jurymen I am not usually the driver of the coach, but the regular driver employed me because he did not feel well I call four miles an hour a steady pace. I did not go faster than usual.

The coroner summed up, and said if the jury were satisfied that the accident was caused solely by the recklessness of the driver, they must find a verdict of manslaughter against the driver, but they must be certain that the accident was owing simply to that negligence. If the shying of the horses had caused the accident, the driver was not liable. It would be seen that of those witnesses who said there had been no shying, one was at the back of the coach, and admitted that he could not see well, and the other, who was on the box, did not know what shying was. They all knew the nature of the road, and must be aware that a little swerve would put the coach in the ditch and if, as the coachman said, the footboard had given way and no one could say it had not the least shying would put the horses out of his power. The evidence proved that the man had driven satisfactorily till reaching the top of the hill, but owing to an altercation with a passenger, got into a rage, and drove down the hill rather faster than usual. If the jury had any doubt upon the subject they must give the man the benefit of the doubt.

The jury at 4.80 proceeded to consider their verdict. At half-past five they sent for the coroner, and the foreman explained that ten of the jury were in favour of a verdict of manslaughter, but the other two, although of opinion that there had been recklessness on the part of the driver, were not prepared to send him for trial, believing that the shying of the horses had something to do with the accident. The ten jurymen held that even if the horses had shied, the driver, had he been sober and going at a steady pace, would have been able to pull them up in the distance between the spot where the shying was alleged to have occurred and the scene of the accident. After some conversation,

The coroner placed three issues before them - Was negligence the sole cause of the accident? Presuming there was evidence of some negligence, was the shying the immediate cause of the accident? Was the driver careful, and the occurrence simply an accident. If they found in the affirmative to the first issue, there must be a verdict of manslaughter. In the second, a verdict of accidental death, with a rider censuring the driver; to the third, merely accidental death. The jury must agree upon one of these points. At half-past seven the jury returned the following verdict - We find that Louis Slade was accidentally killed by being thrown from a coach near the Kaitoki hill, on the Pakuratahi Road, on Saturday August 14, 1875, that at the time of the accident the coach was being driven with some recklessness, that the evidence is not sufficient to justify the jury in giving a verdict that the accident was the immediate result of such recklessness ; that the jury are of opinion that the driver is not a fit and proper person to have charge of a coach.

The coroner at the conclusion of the inquiry called Nelson in and informed him of the narrow escape he had had, and added that he trusted it would be a warning to him to be more careful in future

Resident Magistrates Court – Monday 23 August - Manslaughter

Charles Nelson was brought up on remand charged with the manslaughter of Louis Slade, by the negligent driving of a coach on Saturday the 14th of August. Mr Buckley appeared for the defence. Alex Tawse overseer for Oakes the contractor, was a passenger by the coach on the night of the accident. Prisoner was driving the coach. Witness got up at the Hutt. Before the coach got to Collins's the driver drove faster than usual, according to his idea. He stopped at the Kaitoki hill to allow three passengers to alight. After some delay he started, going down the hill at a furious pace, the coach being sometimes near the side of the road. After this the driver slackened the pace. The coach ran along the side of the water-table more than a chain before it struck the bank. He jumped off. Saw three men, a woman, and a child in the water-table. Went to a house and called for assistance. Went back and picked up the child, a boy Louis Slade. Blood was running from the child's head. Carried the child to Mrs Dickins. The child trembled but did not speak. Returned to the coach and helped to carry the woman in. The woman was insensible. Her name was Slade. We washed her head and gave what assistance we could, and went back to the scene of the accident. Saw the two men, who were not much hurt. Mr Black was one of them. The coach and horses had gone on. Saw the coach afterwards at the bottom of the incline, smashed to pieces. The horses had gone on. He got in at the Upper Hutt, and paid the fare to the driver. The driver appeared to be confused while counting the money, and counted it two or three times over. The driver appeared to be under the influence of drink. At the foot of the Mungaroa witness said to defendant he thought he was driving recklessly. The defendant said the coach was all right, it wouldn't break down. Witness told the men on the top to get inside the coach. The driver was still under the influence of drink. Witness had often travelled on that road. Never saw a coach driven at the same pace as the prisoner drove his. The reason he jumped off was because he saw it was dangerous to remain on the coach.

John Prentice labourer deposed Was a passenger on the coach driven by defendant at the time of the accident. Had a seat on the top. Was going to Kaitoki. Rode as far as the Mungaroa Hotel. He saw the driver go in and come out of the hotel. He came to him and asked for the fare. Did not notice what state he was in. Heard a man say to the driver, who was standing by the coach. "If you don't mind you will have an upset. The driver said, I do not care if I do. Witness believed him not to be sober. Thought if he were sober he would not make use of such an expression. A passenger asked him and his mate to get inside. The coach went off at any easy pace. The next stoppage was at the foot of the hill. He got out and walked up to the top, where he caught up to the coach. A woman and a child were sitting on the top. We got up again. About a mile further on a passenger got from the inside on to the box. The passenger would not get inside. The driver said there was too much weight on the horses' backs. There were two big boxes on the top. Two passengers sitting behind asked the driver to drive on. The driver used the whip and swore at the horses, and set the horses galloping. Witness was inside at the time of the accident. He looked behind and saw a man lying on the road. He hallooed at the coachman to stop. The coach struck the bank. The next thing he remembered was that he was lying under the top of the coach. It was a bright moonlight night. It was about 7.30 pm when he got on the coach at Cruickshank's. William Blake blacksmith was on the coach on Saturday week, the 14th instant. He got on the coach driven by the defendant at Taita. There were three horses in the coach. It was in the evening, about dusk. He got inside. The coach stopped at the next public-house. Went into the house and had a drink. Did not see the driver go in and have a drink. He kept his seat. At the Mungaroa got out and walked up the hill. We stopped at three public-houses after leaving Taita. Witness saw the defendant have three drinks, one of which witness gave him. Walked going down the hill, and got up again outside. The driver asked him to get inside, as there was too much weight on the top of the coach. He was in the act of shifting his seat, when the woman pulled his coat as a hint not to shift. He did not shift his seat. He pushed the boxes farther back on the top of the coach. The coach was stopped. He sat down, and told the driver to drive on, which he did, as fast as the horses would go, the defendant whipping and urging the horses on. Witness thought the driver was driving very recklessly. He made no remark about it to the defendant. This pace continued until the accident took place, when the coach took a lurch into a rut, and witness was shot off on to his feet, his back resting against a bank, the hind wheel of the coach going over his right foot. When we got to the Mungaroa the defendant appeared to me just a little fresh.

By Mr Buckley he had five nips during the day between Taita and Mungaroa. They were all sixpenny drinks.

Mrs. Slade wife of Fred Slade, deposed I live at the Pakuratahi. Was a passenger with her son Louis Slade aged 13, by the Pakuratahi coach, on Saturday August 14. Was an inside passenger. When the coach was going uphill, gentlemen got out, and witness took an outside seat by the side of the coachman. Detained a gentleman by pulling his coat, and asked him to shift the boxes. The coachman began to whip the horses and drive them as fast as he could. The two hind horses commenced kicking. All witness remembered after was that the coach was driven across the road. Her son Louis was sitting beside her. The marks on witness's face were the result of the accident.

By Mr Bell witness had her baby at her breast at the time of the accident. The driver was holding the reins carelessly. One rein was hanging loose. The driver was using the whip and swearing at the horses at the time. Became unconscious.

By Mr Buckley : Do not know what room there was in the coach. She detained the gentleman while she took an outside seat because she felt faint. It was a pleasant night.

Constable Lyster deposed From information received, went to scene of accident. Found the coach upset, the top part detached. This was towards the bottom of the hill, at the turn in the road. There was sufficient room there for two coaches to pass each other. Went to the Golden Fleece at Pakuratahi. Saw a child, Louis Slade dead. The left side of the head was covered with blood. He was accompanied by Constable Stewart. The wound on the top of the head was about half-an-inch round. An inquest was held on the Monday following.

By Mr Buckley The verdict of the jury was that the child was that the child was killed by a coach accident, and that the driver had driven the coach recklessly, and that the coachman was not fit to have charge of a coach. The defendant was present. The coroner told him he had had a narrow escape. Witness considered the driver to be a pretty steady driver. Had seen him frequently pass his station. Considered the coach to be in pretty good order. Saw defendant pass Wilkins's public-house on the 14th. Did not think him to be drunk. The Bench committed the prisoner to take his trial at the next sitting of the Supreme Court.

An inquest was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of the deceased's father on the body of the little girl Ellen Lawrence who was found drowned in the Mungaroa stream on the previous day. The evidence went to show that the unfortunate child in company with two other children was crossing a plank which bridged the stream and losing its balance fell into the water. The other children the oldest of whom was but seven years old did not give an alarm in time to procure assistance and the poor little girl had been carried down the flood over a hundred yards before she was rescued when life was almost extinct. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death by drowning

Mr McKirdy's camp near Mungaroa was the scene of an awful tragedy on Sunday night last. About 11 pm a strong robust Scandinavian known as Phillipo attacked five men with an axe inflicting scalp wounds of a more or less serious character on all and hacking one in a fearful manner about the body. Reports differ as to whether the attack was made in the heat of a quarrel or whether it was a premeditated one but there is no doubt but it will prove fatal to three out of the unfortunate five. Two we hear died on the road to the hospital and the third is not expected to recover. Early on Monday morning search parties went out in all directions to arrest the murder and soon after midday a party of Maoris recognised him and handed him over to the authorities. The same afternoon he was removed to ton closely guarded with an ominous halter tied round his neck. Two out of five men attacked were countrymen of his own.

1875 - Richard Waygood HAWKINS

Colony of New Zealand wit.

Informations of Witnesses severally taken and acknowledged on behalf of our Sovereign Land the Queen touching the death of Richard Waygood HAWKINS at the dwelling House of Isaac WILKINS known by the name of The Railway Hotel in the Province of Wellington in the Colony above mentioned on Monday the eighteenth day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy five before John G F WILFORD one of the Coroners for the said Colony on an Inquisition then and there taken on view of the body of Richard Waygood HAWKINS then and there lying dead as follows to wit:-

Thomas ROWLAND being sworn saith that I am a lodger at Wilkins Hotel deceased was employed about the hotel as general Servant. I have known deceased a fortnight, I sleep in the same bedroom with him. I never noticed anything peculiar about him, until last Wednesday night when he loaded his gun & went out into the garden about ten o'clock, I followed him & kept alongside him wondering what he was going to do, he walked around the garden and then returned to the house, placing his gun in the corner of the store house leaded, he then went to bed. On Friday night after we went to bed he began telling me how he was going to shoot Mr Brown if ever he saw him do something, or other again, he did not explain himself, this was the last time I saw deceased alive. I was much surprised to hear him talk so wildly. I have often noticed him gloomy & low spirited. On Saturday morning before I was out of bed I heard a report in the room below the bed room and after the report a grown & the smell of smoke, I came quickly down stairs & found deceased lying flat on his back on the floor, the gun lying also on the floor in front of him with a piece of rope round the trigger I noticed a bullet wound in the pit of his stomach, deceased was quite dead when I first saw him - (signed) William Rowland

Isaac WILKINS being sworn saith that I am landlord of the Railway Hotel Upper Hutt deceased was my servant, has been with me about six months, two years ago he was in my service about four months, deceased was a god Servant but very excitable when anything annoyed him he was apt to do many wild things I considered when excited he was not master of his actions. Two or three times on Tuesday I had to check him when having altercations with people, On Saturday morning I got up about six o'clock on coming down I saw deceased he was going to feed a horse, I went with him to the paddock to catch the horse, he took the horse into the stable a few minutes after as I was standing in front of the house, I heard a report & on going inside the saw the Servant Ellen open the door & said Dick had shot himself. I went through into the Storeroom and as I went in, I saw a narrow gap through the body & he was dead. I noticed nothing particular about him when we went to the paddock to catch the horse, he seemed to be as usual, deceased was a really quite man when nothing put him out but very clearly excited and when excited deceased to loose all command of himself, deceased was very fond of a girl. I never notices that deceased was fond of the girl Ellen – (signed) Isaac Wilkins

Charlotte WILKINS being sworn saith that I am landlady of the Railway Hotel Upper Hutt I never noticed the deceased shown any signs of being fond of the girl Ellen He might have been but I never noticed it Deceased was very strange in his manner at times, & when any trifle upset him he succumbed to loose all commanded of himself. I don't think deceased was always accountable for his actions. Deceased had had a quarrel with Mr Brown because Mr Brown wanted breakfast to early in the morning (her X mark) Charlotte Wilkins - witnesses by William Burt & David Lyster

Ellen GEANGE being sworn saith that I am general servant at Wilkins Hotel have known deceased four or five months, during the last two or three months deceased was a te totaler, for some time I have thought him rather queer, about three weeks ago he shot his dog in a rage, never noticed him lowly or low spirted, never knew deceased pay her Addacpes [sic] to her or any other girl. About half past six I was starting cooking breakfast in the kitchen deceased came to one & asked me did I like him? I answered Yes I liked everybody that liked me. Then deceased went into the next room, I shouted to him had he feed the fowls, he answered 'Not yet', from the other room and immediately after I heard a report I ran then to Mr Wilkins. When deceased came to me in the kitchen he put his arm round me & kissed me I have never been out with him on any evening (signed) Ellen Geange

Ellen GEANGE being sworn back saith that deceased quarrelled with Mr Brown about the breakfast, Mr Brown wanted breakfast at six o'clock in the morning, on Friday last. Mr Brown gave me a Kiss when I laid his breakfast. The Late Fatal Accident at the Rimutaka Tunnel Coroner's Inquest

An inquest was held at the Criterion Hotel Upper Hutt, yesterday, before Dr Wilford, coroner, and a jury, of whom Mr Michael Fitzgerald was foreman, touching the death of Patrick Moriarty who was killed at the Rimutaka tunnel on Thursday last. The jury having viewed the body of the deceased the following evidence was taken.

Thomas Barton I am working at the Rimutaka tunnel, and was so on Thursday last. The deceased was working with me. Shortly before 7 o'clock that morning I was engaged in taking away the supports from the lining of the tunnel. The deceased and the other man who was hurt were also at work on the staging above where I was. I cannot say for how long a time the supports had been there nor for how long the lining had been put up. All at once the concrete blocks and the laggings, and everything else, came down. It was the roof of the tunnel that gave way and brought down the timbering. The man who was hurt, but not killed, is now in the Wellington Hospital. Both of those men were buried beneath the stuff that came down. The lining of the tunnel was composed of concrete blocks fixed with sand and cement. I would not say whether the blocks were damp when they came down. I assisted to dig the body of deceased out of the mass of stuff which fell upon him. He was quite dead. I have been working there for two months. I cannot say whether the proper time for removing the supports had arrived, nor whether or not they were removed earlier than usual. So far as I know there was no particular difference in this piece of lining from any other that I've been at work on, and I can't assign any reason for its falling.

By a Juryman I can't say when the centre was taken away.

Frederick Thomas deposed I was working alongside the deceased when the roof of the tunnel fell in. I was engaged in packing on another centre. I saw the men removing the supports a few yards away. Before all the supports were removed the roof fell in, burying the deceased and another man. Helped to dig out Moriarty. He was quite dead. The men began about seven o'clock on Wednesday morning to put the arch up, and finished it at noon the same day. It was not up twenty four hours before the supports were removed. I have been working for the last six weeks on the tunnel. It has been usual to remove the supports twenty four hours after they have been put up. This was removed before that time. Sometimes they stand for a week. I don't know by whose orders the supports were removed on this occasion. There was no stated time that I know of for removing the supports. I generally take my orders from Mr. Kendall

By Mr Mason (engineer) They were prizing the laggings out with an iron bar. The laggings are boards on which the arch is built.

By a Juror I don't know whether the wedges were removed or not. I don't understand what the proper method is of removing supports. So far as I know there was no fixed time for removing the supports.

Patrick Bradley deposed I was at work at the tunnel on Thursday morning. I was close to deceased at the time of the accident. I don't know when this arch was commenced or finished. I don't know whether there was any fixed time for removing the supports. It depended on the nature of the ground. If the ground was dangerous a longer period was allowed. I don't know by whose authority the supports were removed. I know that a short time ago, when a centre man wanted to remove the supports, Mr Kendall prevented him. When they moved the wedges I said, Good Heavens what are they removing the supports so soon for and hammering so. I felt afraid of an accident, and being in a dangerous position myself, moved away just before the accident.

By Mr Mason I know something of how supports ought to be removed. They took the wedges out first but I thought they did not exercise sufficient care and precaution in the work. The man who was hurt and is in the Hospital was apt to be somewhat reckless. I think if the wedges had been removed more gently had they been carefully eased warning would have been given that the arch was not safe.

By a Juror I saw the men removing the wedges. They were drawing them on one side. There was a heavyweight of packing on the top, which was rather wet. I do not know who was responsible for the removal of the supports on tins occasion. Some of the ribs were loosened from the centre before the roof fell.

William Paul Kendall deposed I am employed as overseer at the Rimutaka tunnel. The deceased was working under my orders. The last block was put in nineteen and a half hours before the supports were removed. I had given Matheson, the man in the Hospital, orders to remove the support before noon on Thursday, leaving it to his discretion when he should do it, so long as it was done before that time. He was a ganger under me. It is usual for me to give instructions to the men on the shifts as they go on. I gave these instructions to Matheson at midnight on Wednesday. He was an experienced man at the work. On several previous occasions supports were removed within as short a time as those. There was no fixed time. It varied from twelve hours to five days. I did not myself inspect the arch to see if it were time to remove the supports. I left it to Matheson, who was I believed, competent to decide. I did not see the supports removed, and cannot say whether they were removed carelessly or not. There is a proper way of removing supports, and the arch ought to be tested to see if the cement is set. I think the incline in the tunnel had something to do with the accident but if the supports had been removed carefully and properly, I believe the arch would not have come down if it was coming down they would have perceived it by removing the supports gradually. This arch was commenced at half past five o'clock on Wednesday morning.

By a Juror I did not tell the masons to put in any kind of block into the arch. Mr Brookes, the inspector, has cautioned the men to be careful in removing the supports from the arches.

William Mason deposed I am engineer on the Rimutaka tunnel work. It is not a contract it is being done by the Government. I only know of the accident by hearsay. I have not inspected the scene of the accident since it occurred. From what I have heard and know of the matter I should attribute the cause of the accident to the workmen striking out the wedges too suddenly. If the men had taken proper precaution by testing with a hammer, and relieving the arch, they would have discovered that the arch was not ready to support itself.

The Coroner briefly summed up, saying the case was a very simple one so far as the cause of the accident was concerned, and it was seldom that so straight forward a story was laid before a jury so far as that was concerned. He should leave it to the jury to say whether or not there was blame attributable to anyone. The jury retired to consider their verdict, and after a short deliberation returned a verdict of accidental death.

The body of the deceased was brought into town by the evening train, to await burial today, and a considerable number of his fellow workmen also came in so as to attend the funeral. (Reference Papers past website New Zealand Times newspaper 04 May 1878)

1879 – Fire at Robert MACDONALDS house

ORDER (Reference Archives NZ Wellington R24367355 ACGS 16211 J1 247/an 1879/2450 Coroner Hutt 21 July 1879 Inquest proceedings on fire Robert Macdonald's House year 1879)

Evening Post newspaper 11 July 1879

Fire At Mungaroa - An inquest was held at the Provincial Hotel, Upper Hutt, yesterday, before Dr Wilford, coroner, touching a fire, by which the premises of Robert Macdonald, Mungaroa, were destroyed on the 25th June last. Mr Walter Bishop was chosen foreman of the jury. Mr Stevenson watched the case on behalf of the National Insurance Company.

Mrs Bessie Macdonald deposed that on the 25th June she left home to burn bush about a quarter of a mile distant, taking the children with her. She was the last to leave the house. She returned about 4 o'clock and found the house on fire. She could not get in at the back door owing to the smoke and heat. There was no smoke in either of the front rooms. She called a man who was working for her husband, and her eldest son, who were soon on the spot. Witness left a moderate fire in the fireplace on going out. She used an American oven and open fireplace. They saved the harmonium, chest of drawers, chairs, a few pictures and two books. Often left the house without any one to take care of it. Her husband was away that day and the day before, but returned on the afternoon of the following day. Her impression was that the fire originated in the chimney. The house consisted of 7 rooms, but she did not know the value.

Robert Elliot Macdonald, aged 15, son of the last witness, also gave evidence, stating that he believed the fire originated in the upstairs bedroom.

John Osborne, Mr Macdonald's man, was sworn, and denied having told anyone that he thought Mr Macdonald would have a difficulty in getting his insurance. Was quite sure he did not tell a gentleman who called himself the editor of a paper that Macdonald expected a speedy settlement. He said, "What use is it to insure unless a man gets the insurance?" Mr Macdonald stated that the house was insured for £300, and the furniture for £100. He bought the house and 165 acres of land for £330. The house was not inahabtable state when he bought it, and he had to effect several repairs in it. Had no pressing demands for money at the time of the fire. He had a suspicion of Osborne, and was led to insure, as he had heard that he had once burned down his own place at Makara while not right in his mind. He had no suspicion against anyone in the present case Philip Davis, insurance agent said he valued the building at from £100 to £200 for insurance purposes. W M Bell builder, placed the value at £180 to £200.

The jury after some consultation returned an open verdict to the effect that there was no evidence to show how the fire originated.

In witness whereof as well the said Coroner as the said Jurors aforesaid have hereunto set and subscribed their hands and seals the day

and

The above named deposition of William Valentine Jackson - William Nord Gibraith – Edward Morgan – John Gibraith – James Hamlin Farr – Catherine Blanford – Louis Marshall – George Cooper written on twelve pages of paper numbered consecutively from on to twelve and by me affixed together were taken and sworn before me at the Upper Hutt in the said Colony on the eleventh day of March 1880 J G F Wilford Coroner

And

Information of witnesses severally taken and acknowledged on behalf of our Sovereign Lady the Queen touching the death of fire at Golden Fleece Hotel Pukaratahi at the dwelling house of Walter Bishop known by the name of The Provincial Hotel in the Province of Wellington in the Colony above mentioned on Thursday the eleventh day of March one thousand eight hundred and eighty before John G F Wilford one of the Coroners for the said Colony on an Inquisition then and there taken on fire at the Golden Fleece Hotel Pukuratahi as follows to wit.

William Valentine Jackson – I am the owner of the property land & building at the Pukurartahi the scene of the late fire. I sold the property to W H Gilbreith as atonally for Peter Gilbreith the price fixed was ten pounds per acre, the acreage we estimated at 280 more or less a summary was to be made to determine the exact amount, I gave up possession on Saturday February 21st 1880. The money was paid as a deposit but the purchaser agreed to pay 500 on the first of July 1880 and the balance as it suited him during the kind years from the time of his takings possession of the Hotel & Stables in case in secured in September 1879 for £1200 previous to that they had been insured for £2000 for the previous shall years. The reduction in the insurance was to save expenses as I was not making much use of the place. There was a clause in my agreement with Gilbrith that the building should be kept insured for not less than £1200. According to a clause in my agreement Gilbrath can call upon me to except dwellings to the extent of £1200 the amount of the insurance money signed W V Jackson.

William Wood Gilbrath being sworn saith that I am the lessee of the property at the Pukeratahi the scene of the late fire. I as attorney for my father I took possession on the 1st of March I had occupied the house from February 21st. The house was burnt down on the second of March. I had some of my furniture in the house including chairs beds &c., The value kit the furniture burnt in the house I estimate at fifty pounds besides that I lost twenty pounds in money, ball ounces of gold dust and jewellery & clothing all together I consider my cost between two & three hundred pounds, I have no insurance and my goods I had intending insuring that morning. The furniture was in difficult no overs in the house. At the time the fire broke out I was away in the back trying to short some rabbits out starting home I saw smoke coming through the shingles I gave my gun to my brother who was with me. I ran up to the house he followed. I got two buckets of water and entering the house I going up the stairs I found the roof over the stair case celling well alight I applied the water but it was useless. I then tried to get into my bedroom the handle of the door was guite not stepping back to burst in the door the fire from the roof he fell to fall upon me I flew cleaned out. I could not say from the appearance of the fire whether it had originated inside the house or outside. I think it must have been an hour or an hour and half from the time I went out with the gun to my seeing the fire. Nobody was left in the house when my brother & I left to go to the bush the only fire was in the kitchen which was some distance away from where the fire started. There were stumps burning at the back of the house about one hundred & fifty yards from the house the wind was shifting sometimes blowing from the burning stumps to the house. Had the fire have been smouldering at the time we left the house we noticed not accessibly have seen it as we were in a different part of the house.

By lecturer Warren I don't recollect which door I left by when I went out with my brother my brother locked the back door when we went out I am not sure whether I locked a door or not I bathed in the river that day I remember Mr Ivan's presenting a bill to me a day or two before the fire I told him I had no change till I went to town I was about half wat between the bridge and the house when I met Mr Cooper [sic] had five or six chairs besides a sitting chair & a reclining chair also a sofa these were saved that half of these things in the east part of the house were saved don't know what my brother saved from the rooms. Mr Servants had left a few days before the fire. I was to give £2700 for the property a little more or less according to the arrange testable the value of the land at & per acre I consider the building to be the Hotel part of the house if I could get a hotel license I intending asking a year next I expect Mr Jackson to get the Insurance money and to rebuild the premises. According to my agreement with Mr Jackson I bought to have paid a quarter next in advance but he agreed to give me time. I have been told by several people that the building could be put up -- & myself don't know the value of Colonial Insurance signed Wm W Gilbraith

Edward Morgan being sworn saith that I am a builder I know the premises burnt down at the Pakuratahi may back I should value these at from £1800 to £2000 and think it would cost more than that to rebuild them signed Edward Morgan

and

John Gibreth being sworn saith that I was with my brother the day the Hotel was burnt down. We were near the Pukuratahi bridge where we first saw smoke issuing from the roof I ran to the house and at once went up to my bedroom and threw my things out of the window I saw no fire when I went into my bedroom I threw everything out of the window and then got out myself. My bedroom is separated from my brothers by another door before going out I bolted the back door. My brother left the house after me he was not above two minutes in the house after me. I think the front door was left unlocked. We shot no rabbits that day & I think we bathed. We left the house somewhere about nine o'clock signed I Gilbruth

and

James Hamlin Farr being sworn saith that I was in the Gilbreiths employ at the time of the fire I was working in the bush and between two and three o'clock in the afternoon went up to the house to feed some growing parquetted I was rearing I went into the back kitchen I entered by the back door I don't think anybody was in the house at the time I went in I did not go into any other part of the house the brothers Gilbrath I had seen in the bush before I came up to the house I was about twenty minutes away from the bush about ten minutes in the house whilst I was in the house two children of a neighbour (Mr Manbray sic)came in I took them out with me and saw them go home. The wind was not in the shift direction to convey sparks from the slightest idea how the fire could have originated. It would take about five minutes to walk from where we were working to the house & about eight to the Bridge I lost a good deal of my things in clothing a watch The furniture I saw consisted of boxes, chairs, table, small sofa, file & c., I could not say the value of the furniture I am not confident [sic] in value buildings signed Jas Hamlin Farr

and

Catherine Blanford being sworn saith that I live at the Pukeritahi near the scene of the late fire. On that afternoon of the fire on going to my door and looking up the road I noticed a large body of smoke coming out of the chimney in the hotel I watched it about a quarter of an hour and then it began to come through the roof and especially near the chimney soon the roof was all alight and I noticed my daughter and the two Gilbraths getting out the furniture. I particularly noticed thick black smoke coming out of the chimney before it broke through the roof signed Catherine Blacford her X mark witnesses David Tyates – Arthur Warren

and

Louisa Marshall being sworn saith that I live at the Pukuratahi my house is on the opposite side of the road to the hotel burnt down. I was in my house about half past four on the afternoon of the fire where John Gilbrath came over & told me the house was on fire on going out into the road the fire burst out through the roof the lower part of the house apparently not being affected. Mr Gilbrath and his brother were being getting out the furniture I don't know whether everything was got out or not Two of my children came in the house at the time the man Farr came to feed the parquetted he sent them home I was sure they were not over at the house after that I saw nothing about the house after seeing Mr Gilbrath about past two I should think nearly all the furniture was saved signed Louisa Marshall her X mark witnesses David Yates & R Warren

and

George Cooper being sworn saith that I was down at the Pukeritahi bridge on the afternoon of the second I saw the brothers Gilbrath coming from having a bathe between two & three I saw them again about twenty minutes past four coming from the direction of the house when I first saw them they were coming along the side of the stable down to what is called the mill flat I did not speak to them as they did not come near enough to me. I was about four o'clock when I saw them near the stable they might have been coming from the ground signed George Cooper

1880 - James GILCHRIST

At the dwelling house of Henry Brown (Border) Criterion Hotel district Wellington on 25 May 1880 before Mr J D Cruickshank JP on body of James Gilchrist to wit Walter Edward Hacon of the Royal College of Physicians London on Monday 24 May I was sent for to the Upper Hutt I came as soon as possible arriving about 3pm Constable Seaton met me and informed me that the poor patient was dead on my arrival. I went and examined the body and found more than 30 shot holes over the region of the heart and in the abdomen – others in the neck and also in the left and wrist. I am of the opinion that the deceased died from internal haemorrhage to and others being caused by the shot signed Walter Edward Hacon

Samuel Raymond Johnson being sworn that on my arrival at the Mungaroa bridge on Monday 24 May I met my friend the deceased James Gilchrist we shook hands and said how do you do -He said that he had been shooting that morning along the river bank but had got nothing. He said will you be busy and I answered I think not. He said would you like to take some birds home with me - Will you go out shooting with me. I said all right come into the office I said will you have a drop of brandy so he has a drink while I got ready to go out shooting with hum. We left the office a little after 10 am we both had guns and went down to the canoe at the Mungaroa River I gave him my gun he stood up holding both of them while I ferried him across we got out and went along the road towards the Wakat _ [Wakatiki sic] Road. We had not got more than half way between the two rivers when I shot a Kaka. We waited there some little time to see if any more would come about. I then proposed to go over the other river. He said all right we both started along the road the deceased following me until we arrived at the scene of the accident. We sat down smoked our pipes after a little I got up and looked up in the tree close by where we sat seeing a bird there the deceased also rose and walked behind me looking up also. While I was looking up I saw a pigeon fly over the top and settle in a dead tree close to. I passed between deceased and the tree to get a better shot at it telling him not to shot at the Kaka at which we had been looking as the pigeon was better game. I was walking away from him looking at the pigeon I rose the gun to shoot the pigeon when he fired disturbing it – He called out come here "Ray" her is a better shot – I took my gun from shoulder bringing it down to my hip easing the hammer down to half - cock at the same time he called "here you are come on" I turned towards him and the gun went off flew out my hand I was holding it by the barrel in front of the hammers. He called out "My Lord Ray How did you manage that" I said "What is it Jimmy" he said "I am done for" I ran towards him and caught him as he fell – I stayed with him until I saw he was dead – he had his hands to his left breast staffering [sic]. I then ran for assistance and got 5 or 6 men from the bridge works to carry him and we brought him to this house - Criterion Hotel Upper Hutt

In answer to the coroner – I have not the slightest idea how it occurred my gun is a breech loader He was dead in less than 5 minutes

In answer to the Jury – The gun went off in my right hand. It is only the 2^{nd} time I have used this gun. I only used the Rifle Barrel. The Gun was examined by the jury and it was fund that the rifle hand trigger would go off at half-cock the left on was all right and would not go off at half-cock – Raymond Johnson stated that he was not aware of this signed Samuel Ray Johnson

- John Johnson being sworn saith that on Monday 24 May I was called by Mr Brown and told to go over the river and assist a man out of the bush. We hastened over – Mr R Johnson showing us the way and found the body of deceased lying on his back on the ground to all appearance dead. Mr Brown sent for a doctor immediately the alarm was given. We carried the deceased out of the bush and bought him down to the Criterion Hotel Upper Hutt in a cart – John Johnson

Intelligence of another fatal accident was received in town yesterday though the particulars were of the most meagre description. Constable Lyness who is stationed at the Upper Hutt forwarded a report to the Central Station to the effect that James Gilchrist a blacksmith residing in Wellington had been shot by a man named Raymond Johnstone inspector of the road now being formed from the Upper Hutt to Waikanae. The accident happened at 11 am and the unfortunate man died in a few minutes. The body was taken to the Criterion Hotel where it awaits the inquest. The two men were out shooting together but the constable is not state how the accident occurred. Full particulars will no doubt be received today. The Late Fatal Accidents

Mr Hewitt the station master at the Wellington railway station, has furnished us with the following particulars of a fatal accident which occurred on the railway line on Saturday evening. A special train, consisting of engine, four carriages, and a guards break van, left Wellington station at 7 pm. All went well, there being no stoppage until the train arrived at Silverstream, a flag-station where, under ordinary circumstances, no stoppage is made unless the signal is given by passengers who wish to get on the train or alight. There was no signal displayed, but the fireman as the train got within about ten yards of the platform discerned something protruding over the line of rails. There was no time to stop the train, and in a moment more the carriage steps came in contact with what proved to be the legs of a man lying on the platform. The concussion hurled him off on to the line, and the wheels of the first carriage ran over him, cutting and mangling his body horribly, and causing instantaneous death. It was found that the body was that of a man named Kemp, a saw-mill hand, and from the fact that a bottle of brandy was found on the platform near where he had been lying, and from the position he was in when first discovered, it is supposed that he had fallen asleep while intoxicated, and thus met with his death. There was no one on duty at the station, and the mangled remains were picked up and laid on the platform, and the occurrence reported to the police at the Upper Hutt. It should be stated that the night was clear and moonlight, and that the train carried the usual regulation lights a head lamp on the engine, and two side lights on the guard's van so that the unfortunate man, had he been awake, would have had ample time to move clear of the coming train. No blame under the circumstances can be attached to anyone in connection with the accident. We learn from Sergeant Anderson that the deceased was named William Kemp, that he was a carpenter employed at Prouse's Sawmill, Whiteman's Valley, and that he was a widower and leaves two children. He was struck by the step of the first carriage, and when picked up it was found that both his legs were broken and his body cut nearly in two.

Intelligence of another fatal accident was received in town on Monday, though the particulars were of the most meagre description. Constable Lyness, who is stationed at the Upper Hutt, forwarded a report to the Central Station to the effect that James Gilchrist, a blacksmith, residing in Wellington, had been shot by a man named Raymond Johnstone, inspector of the road now being formed from the Upper Hutt to Waikanae. The accident happened at 11 am, and the unfortunate man died in a few minutes. The body was taken to the Criterion Hotel, where it awaits the inquest. The two men were out shooting together, but the constable did not state how the accident occurred.

The Inquests

Two inquests were held at the Upper Hutt, on May 25, the first was on the body of William Kemp, who met with his death at the Silverstream railway station on Saturday last. Six witnesses were examined, but the principal evidence was that of William Gough, the guard of the train which ran over the deceased. He deposed that the locomotive and two of the three passenger carriages attached had passed the platform, when witness, who was on the break van at the rear of the train, saw deceased falling from the edge of the station platform, on which he had apparently been lying, his fall being caused by the step of the third carriage striking against his legs, which had been dangling over the side of the platform. Witness put the breaks hard down, and the train was stopped, and on running back he saw deceased lying on the rail, his left leg cut nearly off, and the left foot smashed, the left hand was also injured, but strange to say deceased held in that hand a silver watch, attached to his neck by a long hair guard, and the watch was not damaged. Looking at it, witness saw that it was going, the hands marking just eight o'clock. Witness pulled down a gate, and with some assistance made a rough stretcher, and carried the body to the train, and took it on to the Upper Hutt, where it was left in charge of Constable Lester, as also some fragments of flesh found cut off the limbs of deceased by the wheels of the carriage, and found on the line. The evidence as to the previous whereabouts of the deceased, showed that he had been in Wellington during the day, and left by the 4.25 train, being at that time perfectly sober. He had with him a bottle of brandy, and it was stated that he drank the contents on the journey, and that he consequently became very tipsy by the time the train arrived at Heywoods. On getting to Silverstream he alighted, but in his drunken foolishness wanted to get back into the train, saying that he wanted to go to town again. Two men who were there held him until the train started, and then put him on a seat in the waiting shed, where he fell asleep, and they left him. From that time until the accident occurred no one appears to have gone near him, but it is evident that he left the seat in the shed and sat on the outer edge of the platform, where he again fell into a drunken stupor, from which he never awoke to consciousness. When picked up on the rails he merely gave one or two faint gasps, and then died. He was a native of Scotland, had been in the colony about twelve months, and bore the repute of being a good workman. His two orphan boys, one aged seven and the other twelve years, have found good friends in their desolation. Mr William Gough, guard of the train, has taken charge of the younger lad, and Mr Prerose, of the sawmills where deceased had been employed, has taken charge of the elder, and will give him employment at the mills. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

At half-past two pm an inquest was held touching the death of James Gilchrist, who was killed on the Queen's Birthday. From the evidence it appeared that deceased, who was a blacksmith, in the employ of Mr Mills of this city, and formerly a member of the firm of Gilchrst and Waters, had in the early part of the day gone to Mr Raymond Johnson's store, at Petone, having with him a gun and ammunition. He knew Mr Johnson well, and after chatting a while, asked him, if was doing nothing particular, to come out and see what sport they could get, saying that he (Gilchrist) had as yet only shot one bird, a kaka, and that they might, together, have better luck. Mr Johnson consented, and getting his gun, they went out together. After walking awhile, they sat down and had a smoke, and then he (Johnson) saw a kaka in one of the trees, which he pointed out to Gilchrist, and immediately afterwards he saw a pigeon fly into another tree. He called out to Gilchrist not to fire at the kaka, but to try and get the pigeon first, but Gilchrist did fire, and missed the bird, which rose from the tree to fly away, Gilchrist cried out to Johnson to run and have another shot before the kaka got out of range, and he,, taking the gun from his shoulder, ran in the direction towards where Gilchrist was standing, so as to get a good sight at the bird on the wing. Suddenly, as he ran, his gun went off, but for a moment he thought no harm had happened until he heard Gilchrist say. How come you to do that? Johnson ran towards him in time to catch him as he was falling, and Gilchrist then put his hand to his side said, I've got it all here, and then died. Mr Johnson, terribly distressed at the calamity, ran for assistance, but it was of no avail except to remove the body. Inspection showed that the gun charge had been lodged in the body of deceased, with the exception of two shots which penetrated the face. We understand that deceased, who was about forty years of age, leaves a widow and five children. The family reside in Pirie-street. The deceased and his family were spending their holiday at the house of Mr Brown, at the Upper Hutt, and it was Mr Brown and the guard and driver of a train that helped Mr Johnson to bring in the body. Medical examination of the body showed that the charge (of No 2 shot) struck the deceased in the breast and abdomen, but the principal portion lodged in the region of the heart, so that death was almost instantaneous. Great sympathy is expressed for the friends of deceased, and for Mr Johnson, who was the unintentional cause of the deplorable mishap, and who is a brother of the Inspector of Nuisances, and a great friend of deceased. He is overwhelmed with grief at the shocking event. The jury in this case also returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Recent Railway Accident

At the Upper Hutt yesterday an inquest was held at the Provincial Hotel before Dr Hacon Deputy Coroner upon the body of William Kemp who was killed on the 22nd at Silverstream, by a train passing over him. There were seven witnesses examined, and the enquiry lasted about two hours. The evidence brought to light the following facts, Deceased, William Kemp, was a ship's carpenter, and had been working at Prouse's sawmills, Whiteman's Valley. On the 22nd instant he was a passenger by the 4.45 train from Wellington to Silverstream, and was, when he entered the train, quite sober. He was in a second-class carriage, which contained two other passengers, and had a large sized flask of brandy with him of which he partook freely. On arriving at Silverstream he was guite drunk, and went to sleep inside the station. He was observed on the station when the next Hutt train passed, talking to some people. About 6 pm a plate-layer named Harland saw him sitting in the station in a state of intoxication, and left him these. This witness said he knew there was a special train expected to pass soon, but he had no duties in connection with the station. When the special train came up at 7.55 it was felt to go over something. The fireman, Henry Adams, had noticed an object lying on the edge of the platform. The train was then going six miles an hour. The object he saw on the platform fell off, and was recognised as being a man's body. An alarm was given, and the train pulled up in 40 or 50 yards, but the man had been cut through the middle, and his legs, arms, and back broken. The matter was reported to Constable Lyster, who had the remains conveyed to the Provincial Hotel. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that William Kemp, while in a state of intoxication, was accidentally killed by the train passing over him.

Dr G F Wilford held an inquest at Mungaroa Valley on the 2nd instant on the body of an infant named Edward Bertram Benge aged 11 months. It appears that about 7 pm on the previous day Mrs Benge was in the act of undressing the child in front of the fire when it sprang out in her arms and while failing caught hold of the kettle of boiling water that was standing on the hob. The kettle and its contents fell over the child who died at 6 am on the 2nd instant from the effects of scalding. A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned (Reference Papers past website Evening Post newspaper 06 April 1881)

Janes Susannah KEYS being sworn saith that the last time I saw the child of George Cole alive was one Monday evening 12^{th} June between eight and nine o'clock I nursed it about half an hour during which time it was seemly uneasy and I remarked that the child was very [sic] ill. I thought it was in pain Miss Cole asked if it wanted feeding she said I said I though the child was very thin thinner than when it was born it appeared to me out to have thrived as it ought to have done I had seen the child two days previously I did not hen notice it particularly but on arriving home on the Monday evening I told my husband I thought the baby was really ill. I was surprised when I heard the child was dead on Tuesday – I have known Mrs Cole about two years she is a really delicate woman and particularly fond of and careful with her children she was another child who has been laid up a long time with a severe burn and the deceased quite dangerous [sic] with it, she was to go into town on Thursday morning with the invalid child to the hospital and was being getting its thing ready. Mrs Cole is a women that I have a thorough respect for (signed) Jane S KEYS

Mary Ann COLE being sworn saith that Jane mother of the deceased it would have been four weeks old had it lived another day. The child never been strong since its birth, the first sixteen hours of its life new would _ilecurly and did not seem to have strength enough to say, it was always very short of breath, I thought it was the wind and occasionally I gave it a little pine [sic] & peppermint and when the nurse gave it a little brandy it never had any other kind of medicine it repeatedly had these attaches of shortage of breath and would keep up a waning noise but it did not cry like all the other child. The nurse and others remarked that the child got thinner instead of stronger I am not very strong and I used to feed the child twice daily. I did not apprehend any danger thinking it was only the wind. Mrs Keys nursed the child for a time the night before it died, she remarked that it became ill that I thought it was only the wind, I have been weak and delicate ever since the child was born, I have had to attend to another child who has been laid up for the last five months with a serve burn. I was going into Wellington with the current child on the morning of Tuesday when the child died I gave the child food (soaked biscuit) about nine o'clock on Monday night and laid him on the bed about an hour after I went to bed after giving him the breast I lay him on my right arm between me & the wall he went to sleep in that porition I did the same I slept till nearly seven o'clock when my husband woke me saying I had had a good night and I had better get u and prepare for my journey I thought at first the baby was still asleep but on putting my hand on his forehead I found it was cold I then felt his hands & feet and I remarked to my husband that he was cold he took him up & then we found out he was dead. Mr husband then called my next door neighbour Mrs Page - The childs face was turned towards me when I woke and he looked as though asleep (signed) Mary Ann COLE

George COLE being sworn saith that that I am father of the deceased the child is a month old I have seen very little of it since it was born as I am from Monday till Saturday night at Featherston I have notices that it always seemed to have something matter with its breathing seeming to be short of breath when it went to the breast, on the night before its death I thought it was rather better than usual I never noticed how the child was thriving I knew the child had something wrong with it but I could not tell what it was and I never appreciated any danger I retired to bed between nine & ten o'clock the child lay upon Mrs Cole's right arm between her and the wall it went to sleep at once. I woke once or twice during the night and attended to the invalided girl who slept in the same room once I put my hand over and felt the baby it seemed unusually cold and I put a little extra clothing over it I called Mrs Cole just before seven o'clock telling her to rise and get ready for town she said she must first give baby the breast on turning to do so she found the child was dead. The child never had anything to my knowledge in the way of medicine but a little gin [sic] and peppermint for the wind (signed) George Cole

Mary Jane JONES being sworn saith that I was in Mrs Coles house on the Monday morning before the child death. I nursed it about a quarter of an hour I noticed that the baby looked ill I told the mother so she said she thought it was the wind I have seen the child several times since its birth it did not seem to thrive at all and was continually groaning I thought something was wrong with it from the first. Mrs Cole gave it food in my presence. The child seemed very short of breath at times I told the mother so I have known Mrs Cole about two year I consider her a very respectable woman she is always particularly careful with her children I went over about eleven on Tuesday morning Mrs Cole was very much affected at the loss of the child (signed) Mary Jane COLE

Mary Ann PAGE being sworn corroborated the previous witnesses evidence as to the child being ailing from its birth and never having thrived as it ought to do especially as to the shortness of the breath

Suicide at the Upper Hutt

Information reached town yesterday regarding the suicide at the Upper Hutt of a married woman, named Jane Pike. It appears that deceased, who was the wife of Mr Edward Pike, settler, Upper Hutt, had for some days been complaining of a pain in the head. On Saturday last she left her home and proceeded in the direction of the river. Her husband, fearing she intended to destroy herself, as she had developed slight symptoms of insanity a day or two previously, followed her, and arrived at the river side just in time to see her floating away into deep water. She sank almost immediately. By this time five other men had put in an appearance, and one of them, named Charles Chard, jumped into the water and brought the body up from the bottom, when life was found to be extinct. The occurrence was reported to the Coroner, who appointed an inquest to take place at the Provincial Hotel, Upper Hutt, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Deceased, who was 46 years of age, leaves a large family.

Evening Post newspaper 27 August 1886

Suicide at the Upper Hutt – A man named Jack Herrick in the employ of Mr John Downing Wallaceville was found in a whare at the latter place yesterday by George Woodmass an employee of Mr McHattie grocer Upper Hutt with his throat cut. He was quite dead and cold and must have been dead for over 24 hours. He bore a good character for diligence and morals but took to drinking heavily about three weeks ago. He was a man between 30 and 40 and has been some years in the colony. No reason can be assigned for the sad act. An inquest will be held tomorrow at McCrossan's Hotel.

Dr Johnston and a jury of six of whom Mr WP Barber was chosen as foreman held an inquest on the body of Jack Herrick on Saturday at Mr Crossan's Railway Hotel Upper Hutt. It appears from the evidence that finding the ordinary table knife which he used not sharp enough he left his bed in his whare and sharpened the knife and then returned to the bed and leaned slightly out while committing the fatal act. The wound was more of a stab than a cut. Although he had been drinking heavily previously he had not been at the hotel for about a week and had worked a day or two last week. He was however very much muddled but had made no mention of committing the rash act. The jury returned a verdict of Temporary Insanity and were anxious to add a rider censuring the publican who supplied him with drink but the Coroner said he could not receive it as a week had elapsed between the selling of the drink and the act. The body was interred without clerical rites in the Church of England Cemeterv

1888- Joseph ROUSE

Evening Post newspaper 14 December 1888

At half past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr H W Robinson RM held an inquest at the Railway Hotel Wallaceville upon the remains of Joseph Rouse the circumstances of whose death by suicide we fully reported yesterday. The evidence as to the deceased's mode of life and the findings of the body by his two brothers was substantially the same as was related yesterday. Dr Whitehead said that the deceased some three weeks ago consulted him for a complaint which did not exist. The deceased appeared to be somewhat depressed in spirits and the doctor treated him for sleeplessness and want of appetite. The deceased whe leaving the surgery asked if there was any danger of his becoming insane and said that rather than go into an asylum he would hand himself. The doctor reasoned with the man and he left in a more rational frame of mind. Witness said that he has no doubt but that at the time the deed was committed the deceases was suffering from a fit of mental depression which would practically render him temporarily insane. The deceased was last seen by Mr Arthur Cudby about 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning and he was then walking up and down in front of his residence. He had previously told his brother William that he thought he was going off his head. The jury of whom Mr Charles McKirdy was foreman returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased committed Suicide by Hanging while Temporarily Insane.

The inquest concerning the death of an infant which was born in an outhouse at the Upper Hutt on Saturday afternoon was commenced before Mr Robinson RM Coroner at the Provincial Hotel Upper Hutt yesterday. Mrs Emma Leddy sister of Agnes Pyke 18 years of age the mother of the child, described the circumstances under which she found the child which was then alive and stated that she sent immediately for a nurse and a doctor as the infant appeared to be suffering from an injury to its mouth. She was unaware that her sister was enceinte. James Leddy husband of the first witness, Sarah Johnson a nurse and Dr Baker gave testimony the latter stating that it was quite possible the wounds on the month were accidentally received at the time of birth. The cause of death was hemorrhage and the consequences of exposure. Constable McKinnon of the Upper Hutt said that he had examined the place in which the child was born and in his opinion it was impossible for the child to have got where Mrs Leddy said she found it without being actually placed there. As the mother was too unwell to appear and give evidence the Coroner decided to adjourn the enquiry until 11.15 am on 3rd November. 1892 – Annie JEROMSON

Evening Post newspaper 15 January 1892

At the inquest by the Coroner yesterday at the Provincial Hotel Upper Hutt on the body of Mrs Annie Jeromson wife of a settler at Mungaroa who died suddenly the previous day the evidence went to show that the deceased awakened her husband at about 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning and complained of shortness of breath. She rose from her bed and when she went to lay down again appeared to become worse. Mr Jeromson called in a neighbour and administered a little spirit &c., to his wife but she died about half an hour after first complaining of being unwell. Dr Baker who made a post mortem examination of the body was of the opinion that the cause of death was syncope caused by dropsy of the heart and lungs. The jury through Mr J D Cruickshank foreman returned a verdict accordingly.

New Zealand Times newspaper 10 January & New Zealand Mail 16 January 1896

Sudden Death

An inquest was held at the Upper Hutt before Mr Ashcroft Coroner vesterday afternoon on the body of Henry Charles Young who died suddenly the previous evening. Dr Purdy stated that he had made a post-mortem examination of the body and had no doubt death resulted from failure of the heart's action caused by the diseased condition of that organ and probably assisted by some mental worry. Mrs Young widow of the deceased said he was 65 years of age. She last saw him the previous day when he went to Wellington by the 10.30 am train. He did not return to the place they were staying at in Mungaroa Valley and in the evening she was shown his body at the Upper Hutt. She was told he had come out by the 5 o'clock train. He had never complained and never to her knowledge has a day's illness. He was much worried and considered he had been swindled out of his property. He was a most abstemious man. James Brown said deceased was a passenger by the 4.55 pm train from Wellington on Wednesday. He complained of a great pain in his chest and got off at the Upper Hutt looking very ill. William R Keys said deceased went into his shop at the Upper Hutt and said he felt queer and was afraid to attempt to walk to Mungaroa. Witness tried to get him a trap but was unable to do so and he then went back to him to ask him if he could ride. When he got near his shop he saw him lying on the front step of the shop dead. Witness got assistance and took the body to the Provincial Hotel. The jury of which Mr Frank Wilkie was foreman returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence. Mr Young it will be remembered petitioned Parliament on several occasions in connection with the Harper case. The deceased recently took up his residence in the Upper Hutt district. He leaves a widow and a daughter. He was well known in Christchurch

A melancholy drowning accident is reported from the Upper Hutt. Miss Annie Josephine Schultz who was staying for a brief holiday at Trentham was missing since 1 o'clock on Monday morning and her whereabouts were a mystery until on Tuesday when her dead body was found in the Hutt river. It is supposed that Miss Schltz whilst out walking slipped into the water and was unable to get out as her feet were found caught in the submerged roots. Her relatives for whom much sympathy is expressed reside in Wellington. An inquest was to be held yesterday at the Railway Hotel Trentham.

The Upper Hutt Drowning Case - An inquest was held yesterday before Mr Ashcroft Coroner at the Trentham Hotel concerning the death of Miss Annie Josephine Schultz whose dead body was found in a pool of water in the Upper Hutt district on Tuesday morning. Charles A Schultz accountant in the AMP office in Wellington and brother of the deceased deposed that Miss Schultz was in general good health and when she left Wellington on Friday to stay at Trentham she was not suffering from any depression. She was sometimes suffered from giddiness and witness had been informed that she was suffering in that way at the time of her death. Alfred A S Danby Civil servant one of those who found the body said it was discovered in about 8 feet of water near the bank close to where her umbrella was found by her brother. George W Lewens who assisted to get the body out of the pool stated that the feet were entangled in the roots of willow trees and a branch was across one of the arms and part of the chest. A person falling in and getting her feet so fastened could not have got out and the position in which the body was found suggested that Miss Schultz had accidental stepped into the water. Mrs Hesketh and Miss Lucy Copp having also given evidence a verdict was returned that Miss Schultz was accidentally drowned by slipping into the pool of water her feet becoming entangled in the roots. 1906 – Michael BURNS

Evening Post newspaper 22 October 1906 (other newspapers)

An old age pensioner named Michael Burn died on a train between Ngahauranga and Wellington yesterday. Deceased had been living in a hut at Akatarawa and for some years had been employed by Messrs Whiteman Bros. On Saturday he was found to be very ill. Mr Whiteman reported the matter to Constable Nash and subsequently the sufferer was placed on the train to be conveyed to the Wellington Hospital. Dr Purdy visited him on the train at the Lower Hutt and found that he was dying. Deceased expired before he got to Wellington and the body was taken to the Morgue where an inquest will be held.

1907 – Albert Edward NOWDICK

Evening Post newspaper 08 January 1907

A shooting tragedy - Young man's death - A farm hand named Albert Edward Nowdick employed by Mr Thomas Macarthy at Akatarawa about 10 miles from the Upper Hutt shot himself with a gun about 3.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Deceased was 34 years of age and had a wife and four young children who lived with him on the farm. He came out here from England about twelve months ago and had been working at Akatarawa about eight or nine months. Several of his fellow employees witnessed the sad affair. They were on one side of the river haymaking and they saw deceased on the other side walking up and down the bank for some time. Subsequently deceased went into a vegetable garden and sat down. The men heard one shot and on looking in the direction of deceased saw his straw hat fly into the air and heard a second shot. On approaching deceased they found that he had shot himself in the head. An inquest will be held by the coroner to-morrow afternoon at the Upper Hutt where the body had been, taken by Constable Nash.

1907 - William ASPIN

New Zealand Times newspaper 26 March 1907

Accidents and Inquests - The Mungaroa fatality - An inquest on the body of William Aspin (not James Astin as first reported) was held in the Courthouse Upper Hutt yesterday afternoon before Mr J Ashcroft Coroner. James Aspin father of deceased a dairyman residing at Petone deposed that his son was of sober habits and never had a fit in his life. He was an inexperienced cyclist having been riding only a few weeks. Deceased was nineteen years of age and employed by Mr Birrell [sic Burrell] of Mungaroa. James Scrimshaw labourer Mungara said that on Saturday evening about 5 o'clock as he was crossing the Mungaroa bridge he saw deceased about twenty yards from the north end of it. He was cycling at a fairly rapid rate. After passing witness deceased fell from his bicycle just as he was going on to the bridge and staggered forward some yards. He then fell heavily striking the wheel guard with such force that witness heard the thud very plainly. He at once ran to the assistance of deceased and called for help to a gentleman fishing in the river. Deceased groaned heavily but did not speak. Mr Jones the fisherman came up and witness went to an adjacent house to see if he could get some spirits. Shortly after his return deceased expired, about twenty minutes after the accident. The head of deceased swung about as if his neck were broken. Deceased was a sober respectable young fellow. Constable Nash first heard of the accident at 6.15 pm. He did not go to Mungaroa because the body had been placed in the church near the bridge. Mr Birrell [sic Burrell] the employer of Aspin 'told him that deceased left for Petone about 5 o'clock. He saw Mr Jones who said that Aspin expired four and a half minutes after his arrival and that he thought his neck was broken or be had concussion of the brain. He brought the body down to the Courthouse on Sunday and examined it. The left shoulder and the neck below the ear were much discoloured and the head swung to and fro. Except a small stone in a wheel rut he saw nothing on the road at the scene of the accident to show how it occurred. The jury returned a verdict that deceased was accidentally killed through a fall from his bicycle on 23rd March at the Mungaroa bridge. 1910 - Harold KITCHEN

07 June 1910 for Harold KITCHEN

No Coroner's inquest available to research at Archives New Zealand in Wellington.

Sad fatality young man drowned in Hutt River - On Saturday afternoon two Silverstream youths named Flutev and Harold Kitchen, spent the afternoon pig hinting on the Government reserve near the Silverstream railway bridge, on Hayward's side of the Hutt River. Towards evening they had traversed some very rough and in crossing the river about a mile above the bridge, one of them Kitchen was drowned under distressing circumstances. His companion preceded him a little, and getting into a deep scour, had to struggle for the opposite bank as best he could being carried down some distance before he could effect a landing. By this time deceased turned round to retrace his steps, and it is surmised that, in doing so his rifle (strapped to his shoulders) tripped him up, as Flutey could neither see nor hear him afterwards. Some fifteen neighbours who later assisted in the search were unable to locate the body or hear anything to suggest his safe deliverance. The search has been renewed again vigorously, but so far without result. Deceased, who was nearly twenty one years of age, worked on the Shipping staff of Messrs Johnston and Co., Featherston Street. He was a, member of the Wellington College Rifles. His parents reside in Carterton, where he attended school before coming to Wellington College. The sad news follows very closely upon the death of an only daughter. Deceased lived with Mr Charles Seagar, and had relatives in Silverstream.

1920 – child Priscilla SOUTHEY

Dominion newspaper 26 January 1920

Upper Hutt Tragedy - Child Accidentally Shot - The police have received advice of a fatal shooting accident at Ebdentown in the Upper Hutt district. It appears that on Saturday Priscilla Southey a child aged three years was accidentally shot by another child aged seven years who had been handling a pea rifle. The details are meagre but apparently by some means the loaded gun came into the possession of a number of children of tender years with the result that the deceased was shot through the head.

1928 - Cyril William NESBITT

Evening Post newspaper 14 November 1928

Sailors Death – Struck by Motor Lorry – Early Morning Fatality

The circumstances in which Cyril William Nesbitt aged 22 a stoker on HMS Dunedin met his death on the main road near Trentham on 30th October were revealed at an inquests held before the Coroner (Mr E Page SM) yesterday afternoon.

On being dismissed until the next morning Nesbitt and he went up to the Provincial Hotel where they intended to stay the night. They had from nine to twelve glasses of beer and then at about 11.30 they decided to return to the camp to avoid the bustle of getting back early the next morning. After passing Quinn's Post Hotel Nesbitt appeared to be overcome by the liquor he had consumed and he lay down on the edge of the road with his head towards the centre. Witness tried unsuccessfully to rouse him and then lay down beside him and rested on one elbow. The next thing he knew was that he was struck by something. He then saw a motor lorry pulling up a few yards further on. When the driver came up they discovered that Nesbitt had been struck on the head by the lorry and was dead.

Fatal Injuries - Man struck by log - Fatal injuries were received by William Collins, a wood cutting contractor, when he was struck by a log at Akatarawa on Saturday afternoon. The deceased had his right shoulder and rib crushed. He was taken away in the ambulance, but died before arriving at the hospital. The deceased was a single man, 45 years of age, and lived at 19, Murphy street Wellington

Accidental Death - A-verdict of accidental death was returned by the Coroner (Mr E Gilbertson JP) at an inquest today into the death of William Albert Collins, aged 45, who received fatal injuries at Akatarawa on Saturday afternoon when he was struck by a falling log. It was shown in evidence that the deceased was engaged with a man named Muir in splitting firewood. They were using a wire 280 yards long to slide pieces of timber from the hilltop to the river bed. The method was to staple, the logs to the wire and then slide them down. A trap was fixed to the wire about 30 feet from the lower end, to rip out the staples. The logs then shot forward on to the bank. Apparently the deceased did not see the log on its way down, and was struck in the back as it shot from the wire.
